Europe's Future In The Scales?

THE HITLER-MUSSOLINI CONVERSATIONS

CLOSE INTEREST

(Special to "Telegraph")

Rome, June 11.
The importance of the forthcoming meeting between Signor Mussolini and Herr Hitler is emphasised by the preparations now being made for the reception of the German mission.

Much speculation has been provoked and diplomatic quarters are watching events closely.

The results may be vital in the future of Europe and may determine whether Germany's return to Geneva can be negotiated or not.

It is authoritatively learned that Signor Savio, the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Signor Aloisi and Signor Corbelli, the Italian Ambassador in Berlin, are arriving at Venice on Wednesday to prepare for the Hitler-Mussolini conversations.—United Press.

GERMANY'S RETURN TO

London, June 11.
In bringing the meeting of the Disarmament Conference General Commission to a close at Geneva this afternoon, the Chairman, Mr. Arthur Henderson, expressed the wish that the private conversations with the aim of securing Germany's return would proceed with the least possible delay, otherwise it might have to call a meeting of the Bureau.

Italy and Hungary had intimated that they would join the security committee only as observers as they wished for more universal security than regional pacts made possible.

Mr. Litvinoff (Russia) reserved the right to raise the question of regional security on continents other than Europe.—British Wireless.

POLICE WITHOUT A CLUE

INTENSIVE CAMPAIGN FRUITLESS

BAFFLING MYSTERY

Shanghai, June 12.

With the despatch of three Japanese warships to Nanking, the Kuramoto Disappearance appears to be taking on a more serious complexion.

It is freely alleged in some of the Chinese newspapers that an incident is being created by the Japanese with ulterior motives.

The Japanese destroyer Ashi left Shanghai for Nanking yesterday, apparently in connection with the Kuramoto affair, while the cruiser Tsushima is scheduled to sail for the capital to-day.

It is also reported that the cruiser Idzumo is now on her way from Hankow to Nanking.—Reuter.

CHINESE COMMENT ON THE RIDDLE OF A CROWDED THOROUGHFARE

Nanking, June 12.

The disappearance of Mr. Kuramoto, Japanese vice-consul at Nanking, remains a complete mystery.

Up to late last night, despite the continued vigorous search conducted by the local police and gendarmes, not a trace had been found.

A high official of the Chinese Government, in refuting a suggestion circulated by a Japanese news agency alleging that Mr. Kuramoto was kidnapped and murdered by an unknown gang, declared that it was pure imagination, and unconvincing, since worked up to the highest pitch, no Japanese life in Nanking was endangered.

SAILORS MAY BE LANDED.

Meanwhile, a sensational report has been circulated in unofficial circles to the effect that a Japanese cruiser is threatening to land a party of blue-jackets to "help" the Chinese authorities to "help" the search for the Japanese diplomat.—Central News.

The suggestion that a kidnapping case could take place at any point in that thoroughfare without attracting the attention of any other person, is unbelievable.

Moreover, no kidnapping had occurred in Nanking since the Chinese capital was established there.

Sir John Simon added that, in accordance with the usual procedure in urgent matters, the petition would be placed on the League Council agenda immediately. Pending its examination he was unable to make any statement.—British Wireless.

AUSTRIA ON VERGE ON EXPLOSION

SITUATION GETTING OUT OF HAND

CHAOS FOLLOWS OUTRAGES

Vienna, June 11.

Austria to-day is virtually in a state of chaos. Anti-Government violence has grown to such proportions that the situation seems to be virtually out of control.

Both the Nazis on the one hand and the Socialists on the other are active in campaigns against the Dollfuss Dictatorship, although they are naturally working quite independently.

A feeling, somewhat akin to despair pervades Vienna and a doubt exists as to the possibility of the Government being able to restore peace and order.

ALLEGIANCE DOUBTFUL.

The allegiance of some of the auxiliary forces is doubtful enough and people argue now, therefore, Can the Government strengthen their position by the aid of any new voluntary force?

The Government is finding it difficult to act against the perpetrators of the outrages occurring all over the country, creating an atmosphere of fear and unrest.

DAILY BOMBINGS.

Daily bombings continue. It is feared that if the death penalty is applied against offenders, it will intimidate only the less radical element and act only as a spur to the extremists in the Nazi and Socialist camps.—Reuter Special.

PRES. LINCOLN

TO ARRIVE HERE ON SCHEDULE

A telegram received this morning announces that the Dollar ship President Lincoln, which caught fire when nearing Honolulu on Thursday, will keep to her schedule and arrive at Hongkong on June 23.

No news is yet available by the local agents of the extent of the damage which the ship received, but in view of the fact that she is arriving here on time, it does not seem to have been extensive.

On the way to Hongkong from Singapore, a Chinese storage passenger jumped overboard from the s.s. Anhui, and was drowned. The affair was reported to the police on the arrival of the steamer yesterday.

According to a Reuter message received this morning from Rome, Count Sabelli and Lieut. G. R. Pond, who recently flew the Atlantic after experiencing engine trouble, have completed their journey and have arrived in Rome from London. It is their plan to start upon a return flight, across the Atlantic from East to West, shortly.

FASCIST RIOT AT OLYMPIA

VIOLENCE BY STEWARDS

London, June 11.

The disorders at a Fascist meeting at Olympia last week were the subject of a statement in the House of Commons by the Home Secretary.

Sir John Gilmour said the country as a whole would agree that disorder on the scale recently witnessed could not be tolerated and, if it continued, it might be necessary to arm the executive authorities with further powers for the purpose of preserving public order.

He was not concerned to apportion the blame between the Fascists and the Communists, but it was the function of the Government to preserve law and order and they would be failing in their duty if they allowed any faction to disturb the public peace.

They were certainly not prepared to allow the maintenance of order and the maintenance of free institutions to be usurped by any private or irresponsible body, no matter what might be the avowed aim or object.

TEN BADLY HURT.

The statement was made in reply to a number of questions addressed to the Minister.

He stated that, arising out of the disturbances in connection with the meeting, 23 arrests were made and ten persons were treated in neighbouring hospitals for injuries believed to have been sustained within the building.

He explained that, except on request, or unless there was good reason to believe a breach of peace was being committed, it was no part of the Police duty to enter premises where public meetings were being held.

On the present occasion, the Police were informed that assistance within the building was not required.

RESPONSIBLE EVIDENCE.

Allegations have been made by responsible eye-witnesses that assaults were committed by the Fascist stewards on people interrupting, but as the law did not allow undue violence to be used and as the question whether unnecessary force was used might come before the court it would not be proper for him to make any comment on these allegations.

He ought, however, to point out that hitherto advice as regards Police action had been based on the assumption that stewards would act without undue violence and would avoid illegal acts. If

THE SILVER BILL PASSED

U. S. PURCHASES IN LONDON

Washington, June 11.
The Senate to-day passed the Silver Bill, which has already completed its passage through the House of Representatives.

The Bill will now go to the President for signature.

The main provisions, it may be recalled, call for the establishment of a large silver reserve as currency backing in the ratio of 27.76 to gold. The policy is mandatory but the President is given discretion in putting the policy into effect.

Meanwhile, the United States Government is making silver purchases overseas.

Mr. Morgenthau, the Secretary of the Treasury, announced to-day that the Treasury imported five million ounces of silver from London last week.

It is understood that the commitment was paid for by the employment of the funds of the Gold Stabilization Fund.—Reuter.

PROFESSOR ON THE DEFENSIVE

DR. TUGWELL'S IDEAS ON SOCIAL ORDER

DENIES HOPE OF REVOLUTION

Washington, June 11.

Professor Rexford Tugwell, arch-revolutionary, according to the discredited Professor Wirt, Bad Boy of the New Deal according to America's ultra-conservatives, and a negligible quantity in the formulation of Administration policy according to himself, had a gruelling time to-day.

Appearing before the Agricultural Committee of the Senate, Professor Tugwell said that the Constitution was flexible enough for any changes that might take place in America's economic life. He denied that he was in favour of sweeping revolutionary changes in the Government.

His ideas on government were attacked from all angles, but he gave little away.

The Committee appeared to be making an effort to show that Professor Tugwell is unfit for promotion to the position of Under-Secretary of Agriculture, because he is not a dirt farmer, not a practical man.

THE U.S. TRADITION.

Professor Tugwell, in an interview with the United Press said he was convinced that the New Deal is saving rather than destroying American tradition.

Dr. Tugwell believes that President Roosevelt came into power at the low point of American history and thinks the country might have gone to any extreme a year ago.

He remarked that no one knows the direction in which the United States would have gone without some Rooseveltian first aid. In one direction lay Fascism and in the other Communism.

He didn't mention any names. He spoke of directions. But he felt that President Roosevelt had saved the characteristically American tradition.

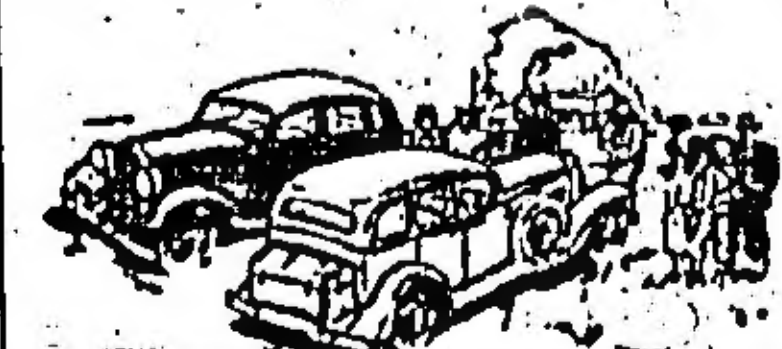

ECONOMIC FORUM.

Protesting that "it doesn't make any difference what I think," Dr. Tugwell asked of the New Deal but asked away from mention of Dr. William A. Wirt, publicist of the Brain Trust "red plot."

Asked about regimentation and control of industry, he replied: "I don't believe in that at all." His conception of NRA is that of an "economic forum" in which differences among and within industries may be thought out and solved.

The real difficulty in the United States, he said, is maladjustment of the price system. Since the war the dislocations in relations between various prices have interrupted the exchange of commodities. And to that interruption (Continued on Page 7.)

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

HERE'S AN EXERCISE YOU'LL FIND EXCELLENT FOR HIP-REDUCING

By Alicia Hart

Every woman, whatever her age, desires slim hips. With the bathing season so close at hand, a slender figure is especially desirable, so if you want to look your best in your new bathing suit get busy now with daily exercises.

Here is an excellent exercise that will help you to attain slim hips: Lie flat on the floor, with arms stretched out at the sides—palms down. Ankles should be together. Keeping the spine and the back of the right hip flat on the floor, raise the left leg, cross it over the right one and point the toes. The leg and foot should be parallel to the right arm and hand, as shown in the illustration.

It sounds easy but it really will be quite hard for you when you begin. As you do it, notice how the muscles of the hips are pulled and stretched. Relax with ankles together and then reverse the exercise, crossing the right leg over the left. Repeat ten times the first day. After that, increase the number by five each time you do it. Of course, if you're serious about reducing your hips, you'll watch your diet too. No rich desserts, you know, and a minimum of starches.

YOUR CHILDREN. Humour and Exciting Narrative

By Olive Roberts Barton

I was interested in seeing what they would do about Hansel and Gretel, the two children who found the witch's house in the woods all made of cakes and candy, and the witch herself who caged up Hansel to fatten him for the oven.

The auditorium was full of bursting with children of all ages. The Junior League was staging a benefit for their children's fund last week. It was, "The Children's Music Box," a collection of little plays, a regular "Chauve Solree," done up in juvenile style.

It consisted of pantomime, folk-songs and dances, a comedy of Milne's, excellent music, and the piece de resistance of the afternoon, "Hansel and Gretel."

The March of the Wooden Soldiers was greeted with cheers. The children sat up straight on their seats.

A Child's Taste.

"The King's Breakfast" met appreciative giggles. Children love humour, and the King and Queen, caricatured, and the Cow and Dairy maid struck their risibilities, amidst loud applause.

"Sur le Pont," and "Claire de Lune," French musical pantomime and dance were lovely, but I suspect the kids thought it was just being good for them. Culture food, all done up in French, although it was really very lovely. Back in their seats—interested but not barking with joy.

Then romance—"The Sleeping Beauty." Fine, but nothing to get the teeth into. No thrills much, except the ugly bad fairy and her cackle. Up in the seats again went the children. Much talking! "Now she's going to prick her finger—watch." All eyes on the spinning wheel. And that was that.

The rustic before "Hansel and Gretel" preaged something. The story was long and good. It worked up to a climax. This time the children were on the edges of their chairs.

I was worried when the last scene opened. There was the candy house, the cage, and the oven in full view. The programme said Hansel would be turned into a gingerbread boy. But the children knew that the witch ate little boys and wasn't particularly keen about gingerbread. Otherwise why use it like bricks to build a house of?

I worried for two reasons. Would the terrible old hag, and thank goodness she was terrific, let her cannibalistic intentions be known? Or would the whole thing be a fade-out, turned into duck soup and end in a burst of song before anything happened?

What do you think? Which way did the cat jump? Well, he jumped to suit the youngsters. Hansel was bundled none too gently into his cage and Gretel forced to feed him cakes to fatten him; and altogether the big, bad witch behaved with ghoulish glee.

Excitement in Friction

Then the oven! The audience under four feet high stood up. This was going to be good. Gretel fooled the witch and pushed her into the stove intended for her brother, then she released the very handsome Hansel and they took their strawberries and went home.

Were those children tickled? Yes, they were. If anything less "mellendramatic" had been wished on them they would have been inconsolable. Of course it was all done with certain evasions of speech. A sweep of the hand without too many upsetting details. That takes expert playwriting.

But children can stand and seem to need the excitement of danger in their fiction. Pirates, Indians, witches, and big bad wolves are

GLORIFYING YOURSELF Consult a Doctor Before Cutting Down Diet

By Alicia Hart.

The woman who is serious about losing weight must realize that exercise alone will not take off excess poundage. Right food in the proper quantities is just as necessary to a slender figure as any type of exercise.

A doctor should advise whether or not it is permissible for you to cut down on certain foods. Perhaps you could get him to help you figure out a reducing diet and maybe he'll approve of only liquids one day each week. Many women set aside one day of the week on which they eat no solid food. Thin broth, tomato and fruit juices, ten glasses of water and perhaps one glass of milk are substituted. This one-day-a-week regime may improve your health as well as your figure.

Eliminate fried food of all kinds and cut starches down to a minimum. Stewed and fresh fruits should be substituted for rich pastries and desserts that abound in calories. Thin soups and plain bouillon are better than thick, creamy varieties. To keep from getting too hungry, eat plenty of fresh vegetables. They are bulky and fill up the stomach, but, at the same time, are low in calory content.

Don't eat between meals unless you get so hungry that you are miserable. Then take only two or three whole wheat crackers and a couple of glasses of water.

In their way delightful. At least reading about them never hurt anybody. But watch the tiny tots. They are not quite ready for such condiments.

CHAPTER XXIII

It was a nightmare—a hideous, black, absorbing nightmare. The rush home through the silent streets, slippery now, fast glazing under the moon; the first sight of the Morell house lighted through-out, with the doctor's coupe parked at the driveway. Gypsy scarcely at the door, waiting for Tom to put on the brakes. She was out of the door, halfway up the stairs by the time he had fairly stopped the car.

"David, mother, how is he?" The big, guest room with its rose-garlanded paper, its peeling creamy woodwork, was one blaze of lights. Gypsy saw only the tiny figure in the bassinette with Doctor Bannerman bending over it. There was a peculiar smell in the room. Clytie hovered near with a kettle. Someone had made a sort of tent with sheets over the big, wide bed with the pineapple posts.

The doctor straightened at Gypsy's entrance. "Nothing but a little croup," he said easily. "Frightening at first, of course. Your mother had quite a turn."

Mrs. Morell began volubly to explain. Her children, she said, had never had croup. David's was terrified when she heard young David's heavy breathing—when he began to choke.

"But he was perfectly well—he was fine when I left him," Gypsy kept saying in her bewilderment. Some one brought her a chair; her knees were trembling with the reaction. The baby slept quietly now, one crumpled roseleaf hand thrown above his head. Lights were turned down and the watchers in the room moved softly, speaking in whispers.

Tom told Gypsy to go to bed; he'd watch David himself. But she was stubborn. She wouldn't sleep, she told him. What was the use? She refused even to take off her frock but sat, wrapped in her woolly robe, her eyes on the crib.

She had been dancing, laughing, an hour ago. She had felt like a girl, carefree, minus responsibilities. Now she wondered at that other light-hearted self. How dreadful, how incalculable life was, always striking at you in the dark. Why, David might have died, fighting for his breath, if Mums hadn't heard him! She trembled at the thought.

She must, at last, have dozed off because when she opened her eyes again the room was very chilly and Tom, straight and tall in his dressing gown, stood beside her.

"Darling, you'll make yourself ill. Lie down in the other bed in Ben's room and I'll watch here. He'll be all right. The doctor said there were even chances he'd not be disturbed again to-night."

She was stiff, cold, aching in every limb. It was good to be cared for and comforted. The sheets between which she crept were deliciously warm. She was asleep in five minutes.

David was happy, rosy, untouched the next morning. The brief and frightening attack of croup vanished without leaving a trace—upon the baby, at least. But it had quite a lasting effect on his young mother. She discovered that the love she felt for him was tinged with fear—fear she might lose him, that something might strike, out of the dark, at his smallness and helplessness.

Yes, motherhood had changed her more than a little. It had sobered and sweetened and saddened her. It made her all at once more womanly, more gentle, more thoughtful while the experience of being a father, she considered gravely, had altered Tom not at all. When they were together, in their own little home, and Gypsy's glowing face and bright eyes were turned up to him, Tom forgot everything except that she was his, infinitely dear and adorable. When he unlocked his own door at night it was Gypsy he wanted to see, first of all. The sound of her light laughter was the sweetest music he knew and he was still filled with wonderment at the thought that she had chosen him out of all the world. The baby came second; Gypsy was first always.

While this did not make any real difference between them, Tom was conscious that under Gypsy's love for him ran always, without change or cessation, her passionate concern for the boy. David completed the circle, he and Gypsy and David. Well, that was as it should be, he knew that. And yet . . . and yet . . . Gypsy had been more completely his before David's coming.

Perhaps it was natural, as the months went on, that he came to spend a little more of his time at the office. For one thing, there were the new demands that David's needs placed upon the Weavers' slender income. And for another, Gypsy was wrapped up in the baby's welfare. She did not feel free to go about as she had before. She was often actually too tired to go to the movies in the evening. She even urged Tom to go by himself or with the Matsons, another young couple who lived on the same floor.

At first Tom protested. No, he'd rather stay at home. He'd much rather be with her. But Gypsy was sometimes too weary to talk. She would make an excuse to creep off to bed early. Small wonder that

Tom dropped into the habit of going out without her.

Sometimes she was frightened at her own weariness and dullness and her absorption in the baby. Tom would tire of her, she would tell herself wildly, glancing at her image in the mirror. She had nothing to talk about these days. The young mothers she met in the park were deep in the mysteries of formulas and pureed carrots and orange juice. How could she, after an afternoon of this conversation, be bright and amusing for her husband? And wasn't David worth any self-sacrifice?

One evening in March they went to dine with Tom's boss, a rubicund gentleman who owned a charming house in Seaside. It was all very pleasant—food, host and guests. But Gypsy felt quite out of it. Her frock was unfashionable and her small talk rusty. She hadn't been to any of the new plays, she didn't do the night clubs. Her hostess was smooth, manicured, beautifully dressed and jewelled. Gypsy considered, with humorous despair, asking them to her home and gave up the project in five minutes. No, until David was a little older—until they had more room and a better servant they would have to abstain from entertaining.

The next day Gypsy made a lot of new resolutions. She would "fuss more" over her own looks, would never neglect cold creaming, rites at night, would give herself a daily manœuvre. Tom had seemed to find that young copy-writer very charming last night. She, Gypsy, had been considered a most delightful companion once upon a time. Where had all her amusing repartee vanished?

When the telephone rang late that afternoon and Tom's voice came to her, she was pleasantly excited. Often when he called this late it was to announce that some newspaper friend had given him second night tickets to a play.

"Yes, darling!" But her voice dwindled: the ring of pleased expectancy died out of it. He had to work? Oh, that was too bad! She had been mentally freshening up her best black frock, doing her hair.

Tom was sorry, he said. There was a big new account in the office. He hated leaving her alone but honestly he had to work on this stuff. She was a good sport! It was all right, then?

Gypsy put the telephone down with a sensation of disappointment and defeat. The long evening stretched out before her with a lonely and solitary dinner to boot. Well, it was too bad, but it couldn't be helped.

She got David ready for the night, a lovely, laughing scrap of babyhood in his ribbed nightgown. But after he had been tucked away in his crib, the light turned out and the windows swept over her. She stood at the kitchen window, her forehead against the cool pane, gazing down at the lighted streets below. Far to the west she could see the lights of the gay street, Broadway. An advertising sign twinkled on and off, red and yellow, red and yellow, half a block away. Night sounds, sounds of the city throwing off its daytime mood of seriousness, making ready for play, came to her faintly. The hooting of taxis, the scraps of brakes. A radio blared out across the way. Dinner music. Somewhere down in the city men and girls were dancing to the strains of that music, were dining and smoking and laughing.

REPORTS BY IMPORTERS FOR PAST FORTNIGHT

The following reports have been supplied by importers to the Hongkong General Chamber of Commerce: Cotton Piece Goods & Fancy Cotton Goods.—The following reports have been received.—The market for Staples and Spring Fancies shows no improvement. Staples can only be sold in competition with Japanese and domestic productions and prices are very low. Stocks of Spring Fancies are plentiful and prices have declined considerably.

The latest Cotton prices to hand are those of the 7th inst.—American Mid. "Spot" 6.51d. Egyptian Sakel. F.G.F. "Spot" 8.51d.

Woolens.—There is little to report regarding trade in British and Continental Woolens but it is evident that Japanese Woolens are entering this market on a large scale and will be seen more and more in the future. Orders for Japanese Wool Venetians, Gabardines and Suitings have been placed by Chinese Merchants at prices which defy competition from other countries. Japanese rayon is also flooding the market in certain deniers and is lower in price than any other make.

Raw Silk.—A fair amount of business has been done with Lyons and local prices for these silks have firmed up. Some inquiries are reported from America but at a low price. As a whole, the outlook seems brighter. Stock totals 10,000 bales. Metals.—The arrival of a fairly large shipment of steel bars from Japan has had a depressing effect on the market. Japanese bars are about 15% below Continental prices. Large quantities of galvanised wires continue to arrive from Japan at unapproachable prices.

Flour.—Market steady. Stock totals 220,000 bags.

In Search Of Health.

Plenty of fresh air—this is one of the guiding principles in the search for health and one which doctors invariably advocate. In the air we breathe is contained that most valuable health giving agent oxygen. Oxygen acts in many ways but its essential functions are to purify, enrich and increase the blood.

To hasten recovery after sickness, when the blood stream is weakened and depleted, any agent capable of creating rich, new, red blood is doubly welcome, such an agent is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

The formula of this world renowned remedy was discovered by a physician, an M. D. of Edinburgh University, who, used it with great success in the treatment of all ailments which had anaemia, (blood impoverishment) as a basic cause. Everywhere the success of this remedy has been acclaimed by people who had been suffering for years from anaemia and its allied ailments, neurasthenia, debility and weakness, pallor and emaciation, dyspepsia, rheumatism, and women's ailments, and who have found new health and happiness through the oxygenising action of these pills. To-day, after over fifty years continued proof of their ability to overcome anaemia, their popularity is as great as ever. If you are run-down, nervous, lack the power of concentration, are easily tired, have little or no appetite, then try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and let them build up your health as they have done for so many similar sufferers. Chemists everywhere sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

A SIMPLE CALCULATION

The joint paid circulations of the South China Morning Post and The Hongkong Telegraph average approximately—

9,000 COPIES PER DAY

This means that your advertising message enters nine thousand homes and is read by probably three times that number of people daily.

If you endeavour to reach these readers by any other means, such as circular letters, how much extra does it cost you?

Here is a simple calculation based on a reasonable estimate of the work involved:—

9,000 Circular letters	@ $7 per thou:	$ 63.00
9,000 Envelopes	@ $4 " "	$ 36.00
9,000 Postage Stamps	@ 2 cents each	$180.00
Labour and incidental expenses (approx.)		$ 21.00
Total		$300.00

AN ADVERTISEMENT OCCUPYING 6 3/4" by 10" (approximately the size of a circular letter) published in both the S. C. M. Post and The Hongkong Telegraph—

COSTS ONLY $36.00

(Based on an Annual Contract of 500" @ 60 cents).

You know what happens to circulars and you know what happens to newspapers when they enter the home or office. The former may fall into the waste-paper basket. THE LATTER ARE ALWAYS READ!

In other words, by placing your message before the newspaper-reading public, your $300 will give you nearly

75,000 MESSAGES INSTEAD OF 9,000

BRITISH FASCISTS

GOVERNMENT STATE- MENT IN COMMONS

London, June 11.

Several Ministers in public speeches during the week-end protested vigorously against methods adopted to silence interruptions at the Mosley meeting.

Mr. Walter Elliot, Minister of Agriculture, said liberties dearly won through the centuries would not lightly be surrendered to anyone, whatever the colour of his shirt might be.

Sir Philip Cunliffe Lister, Colonial Secretary, declared England had no liking and no need for dictators. This Parliament had proved that the Parliamentary system was no bar to quick and effective action.—British Wireless.

Government Warning.

London, June 11.

Sir John Gilmour was freely questioned in the House of Commons this afternoon in regard to the Fascist meeting at Olympia where there were scenes of violence.

He issued a statement on behalf of the Government that a repetition of the disorderly scenes on the seats recently witnessed would not be tolerated and were they to continue, he added, the executive authorities might have to be armed with further powers to preserve public order.

Sir John said that he was not concerned in apportioning the blame between Fascists and Communists, but the Government was certainly not prepared to allow their responsibility for maintenance of law and the preservation of free institutions to be usurped by any private, irresponsible body.

SHAH'S TRAVELS

PERSIAN RULER TO VISIT KEMAL PASHA

Istanbul, June 11.

The Shah of Persia crossed the Turkish frontier this morning on an official visit to Kemal Pasha, accompanied by a suite of over forty persons.

The Shah started immediately on a four-day motor journey to Trebizond, where he will board a Turkish battleship for Istanbul.

The rest houses at which the Shah and his suite will stop have been equipped with special furniture, plate and linen, sent from Angora. Some of the rest houses have actually been rebuilt for the occasion, along the ancient Maku-Trebizond caravan route for the comfort and convenience of the Shah.

After leaving Turkey, the Persian ruler will proceed to Europe

THE FIGHT AGAINST TUBERCULOSIS

Tuberculosis, one of the worst scourges to afflict mankind, is being slowly but surely overcome in countries which have set themselves seriously to the task of wiping it out. For twenty years, the National Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis has been labouring in England with this end in view, and it has just reported that the mortality from all forms of this insidious disease has fallen by more than forty per cent. during that period. What is more, the death-rate therefrom last year was the lowest ever recorded. Best of all, final triumph is believed to be possible. Facts like these should encourage health authorities everywhere to redouble their efforts in waging war against the scourge. Here in Hongkong, an average of fully fifty deaths per week is recorded from this disease, and the rate would be higher still but for the fact that sufferers in the last stages of the disease often leave the Colony to die in their native districts. The problem locally is admittedly one of great difficulty. There is no doubting the fact, to which His Excellency the Governor made recent reference, that the question is largely an economic one, with poverty as one of underlying causes. Equally true is the statement made at the same time by Sir William Peel that it is almost impossible to get Oriental tubercular patients to enter sanatoria until the disease is advanced and the chances of recovery are very slight. None the less, the obligation still rests on the Government to do all within its power both to remove the principal contributory causes and to provide adequate measures for the treatment of sufferers. One long overdue step in the latter connection is being taken by the provision of separate wards in hospitals for tubercular patients. But if any real impression is to be made on the prevalence of the disease locally and if the terribly high mortality rate is to be reduced, far more comprehensive measures will need to be taken. Standards of living will have to be raised, much more intensive hygienic propaganda will have to be undertaken, and, despite the reluctance of sufferers to undergo treatment, provision will have to be made for the one or more establishments devoted wholly to combatting the disease. Experience in England has shown that people have to be educated up to the desirability of early treatment, and the process is inevitably a slow one. Yet by steady, unremitting application it has been found possible to instil right ideas into the minds

NOTES OF THE DAY

EX-KAISER INTERVIEW

Mr. Randolph Churchill's interview at Doorn produced an expression of views upon world politics generally that was so much in harmony at all points with the known policy of the Daily Mail that the critical reader might be forgiven for wondering how much of it was the ex-Kaiser and how much the Daily Mail. Not that the answer is very material or important. Too many subjects were touched upon in a short interview to permit of a reasoned argument in justification of any of the assertions made or opinions expressed. The lack of logic reveals itself most clearly in the reference to the decline of democracy in Europe. Everywhere, the ex-Kaiser is quoted as saying, to combat the perils of "anarchism and bolshevism," which, again, doubtless fits in with the Daily Mail's encouragement of Mosleyism in Britain. In short, it is not the decline of democracy that calls for remark but such activities within democracy that are directed towards fuller expression of the ideal of government by the people for the people—calling for stern measures of suppression.

NEW WAY OF THINKING

Criticism of the ex-Kaiser's opinions that pursues the path suggested above would doubtless be characterised in some quarters as outrageously radical. In actual fact, it is mild comment in the topsy-turvy world of to-day. For instance, what can be the reaction of the ordinary man whose interest in politics is negligible, to a cold unvarnished statement in a stock market expert's review of Washington developments that "implications in the programme of social legislation for the next year indicate a policy of the maintenance of the capitalistic system." The phrase, contained in Swan, Culbertson and Fritz's report from Washington yesterday, was not submitted as a matter for congratulation. The reader feels that had the Roosevelt trend been different, the fact would have been recorded in the same matter-of-fact fashion, as nothing warranting excitement or alarm. As expressed, it is startlingly significant commentary upon a new way of thinking in the world to-day.

MOSLEY BULLIES

Britain will not put up with much more hanky-panky from the Mosleyites. Sir John Gilmour, the Home Secretary, might have expressed himself a little more clearly, but, reduced to simple terms, his statement of policy gave assurance that the bullying tactics of the Black Shirts will not be tolerated. If Sir Oswald Mosley calls a public meeting and fails to gain a hearing, he must put up with it. Even if the inter-rupters exceed the competence of a private organisation to take the law into its own hands and employ hired bullies and violence to suppress the outbreak. Ten persons were treated in hospital after adventures within the building at Olympia. It speaks for itself.

MODERN LATIN

Always enamoured of Latin, educated circles in England are digesting with interest the new crop of "modern Latin" words put out by the "Societas Latina" of Munich, the society of scholars founded not long ago to keep that ancient tongue alive for modern international use. The new crop included: Crossword puzzles (crucigramma), Bobbed hair (compilus puerilis), Lipstick (cilius fucans), London Editorial (caput primarium), Skiing (sola nivalis), Bills of exchange (syngrapha). The Society's review contains articles by technicians suggesting words and phrases which will keep Latin abreast of the times in all the sciences and a useful medium for international conversations. All this is quite in the English key, where the teaching of Latin is, in many schools, highly modern. English schoolboys, aged ten, are now busy translating into Latin, "Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Wolf." Boys of the Westminster School give each year an original play in Latin, which contains so many amusing jokes and bits of modern slang that The Times prints it in full for the benefit of readers. "Crucigramma" is now a "household word" in thousands of British homes.

of the people, and this, together with the spread of hygienic ideas, has greatly helped in gaining master over the dread disease. Admittedly, conditions in the East are not those which prevail in England, but the same basic methods of prevention and cure apply in the one case as in the other.

WILL CUBA GO RED OR REMAIN BLUE?

By A. EDDY

CONTRARY to the belief that Cuba's troubles are purely political, the land of Columbus has simply succumbed to the same economic disaster which was responsible for laying low rubber-producing Malaya, coffee-producing Egypt and grain-producing Argentina.

At the time of the writer's first visit to Cuba, not long after the war, sugar was selling at 25 cents U.S.G. per pound and no bootblack on the streets in Havana would give you a shoeshine for less than 25 cents; labourers cutting sugar cane could be seen wearing expensive silk shirts, and there were no rooms in any decent hotel for less than $15 U.S.G. per day without meals. When sugar subsequently reached the 38 cents figure, American sugar interests offered to take over the entire sugar production of Cuba at 25 cents a pound, but the Cubans wouldn't accept less than 30 cents.

It was during those years of frenzy that sumptuous marble palaces and luxurious hotels were constructed and public works of national importance instituted. Notwithstanding the fact that between 1920 and 1930 Havana was the most expensive city in the world, in 1929 over 120,000 American tourists visited "the most beautiful land human eyes have ever seen", to quote Columbus, the tourist industry thus supplanting tobacco and becoming the largest source of national revenue after sugar.

United States duty on Cuban sugar, plus world market conditions, has sent the price of this product from 28 cents to less than one cent a pound at which figure it was selling in 1931 when the writer visited Cuba for the second time. If we take into consideration that Cuba is the largest sugar-producing country in the world (four million tons a year followed by Java with two millions), it will be readily realized what the commutation of a contract at 25 cents a pound would have meant for Cuba in addition to the probability of keeping away the U.S. tax on her sugar which is one of the principal causes of the present plight of Cuba on one hand and of the prosperity of the Philippine sugar growers on the other. (Incidentally it is an indication of what may happen to the Philippine sugar industry once those islands gain complete independence.)

Complete Stagnation

In spite of the superhuman efforts of Dr. Tirso Mesa, then Mayor of Havana, and the head of the Cuban National Tourist Commission, to increase the national revenue by attracting more American tourists, only 38,000 thirty Americans responded to the call of cold beer in 1931 staying for an average of two and a half days as against eight days in 1929 and spending less than one-tenth of the average amount left behind by tourists in 1929. Hotel rooms were selling from $1.50 up, labourers cutting sugar cane were working without wages, for food only, and there were no more bootblacks left on the streets of Havana. By 1932, the greater portion of sugar cane was left standing in the fields and two-thirds of the hotels had closed down, which fact, incidentally, is responsible for my writing these lines to-day in Hongkong. On top of all this came Repeal in America making it unnecessary for the thousands of merry-makers in Florida to go over to Havana to quench their thirst, and the recent revolution succeeded in completely scaring away even the few remaining tourist boats scheduled to call at Cuban ports in 1933.

At the time of his inauguration in office, which coincided with the crest of the prosperity wave in Cuba, General Machado, with a distinguished record in the War of Independence against Spain, and who through the sheer force of his personality from a clerk in a country sugar mill became the President of Cuba, was the most popular man in his country. However, as the economic situation became worse and worse, he had to face severe criticism on account of maintaining a costly army and also for constructing expensive public works like the Central Highway (700 miles long, traversing the entire length of Cuba without a single level crossing and costing 200 million dollars gold) and the Capital (the nearest rival of Taj Mahal and costing 20 million dollars gold) and the Machado Model Village and Industrial School, which are undoubtedly the most outstanding achievements during the 35 years of national life of Cuba. Had Machado retired at the end of his first term, he would have gone down in history as one of the greatest Presidents of Cuba. However, by arbitrarily changing the Constitution and by appointing himself for a second term against the will of the entire nation (when he pronounced the historical phrase: "I cannot be ousted with scraps of paper" (ballot), he became the object of the greatest national hatred and the scapegoat for the catastrophe of Cuba.

A Broken Spring

And there is Cuba to-day, prostrated like a mechanism with a broken spring, and Havana, once the Paris of the tropics and the gayest and most luxurious city in America, deserted by natives and tourists alike. Gone are the days when Havana was the cleanest city in the world, without flies and mosquitoes. Every second building in the centre of the town is now to let or for sale, and the Municipality has other things to worry about besides keeping alive such an expensive sanitary department. Her tourist trade is finished for the time being, and the few remaining hotels open for business, are empty. Her luxurious Casino, more sumptuous than that of Monte Carlo, and her racecourse, one of the most beautifully laid out tropical tracks in the world, and at one time patronized by more millionaires than any other, with the possible exception of Aguascalientes on the Mexican border, have been closed for over two years, and her commerce has shrunk to less than one-fourth in four years.

There are three roads to salvation (1) a war which would increase the price of sugar, (2) a custom union with the United States, and (3) settling down to adjust the national life to the new circumstances. The third alternative is the most difficult one to face, and at present Cuba is drifting on the high seas of world depression, aggravated by revolutionary struggles for power.

Revolutions in Latin America are usually directed against per-

JEEJEEBHOY GOES ON

By George

"THE Golden Candar-reen", by the author of previous instalment.

(N.B. Readers who failed to catch a paper of yesterday's issue and thus missed the opening of our hire-purchase serial should buy one now at the office as we can't keep reproducing the same bit every day—besides the author might still be here. However, for the benefit of the above readers we are repeating our last paragraph.)

"But it is with the son of the chairman of directors that we are concerned. Palo and delicate, noble and beautiful in character and feature, Reginald Hiploola de Jeejeebhoy of the P.W.D. was, despite his name, every inch a man."

(What is Jeejeebhoy going to do in this second instalment of a thrilling narrative? Goodness knows he didn't do much yesterday but then what could you do in half a column? Ask your friend this question and send us the replies to-morrow. If we don't use them remember we're running this serial, not you. Now read on.)

SECOND INSTALMENT.

every other inch a man.

What more natural than that he should fall in love with Madge whose coarser and more manly features appealed to his sense of humour?

Even now she was awaiting his coming, impatiently puffing great clouds of smoke from the Isla de Perfectiones cheroot which she had retrieved from wherever she threw it in the first instalment of a thrilling narrative.

Brushing a hand across her stubbly chin she gazed moodily through the Peak into the near future. What she saw afforded her little satisfaction apparently for suddenly she grunted loudly and spat over the verandah thereby causing the amah to prick herself severely with her chopsticks.

It might almost be said of Madge that she was every inch a man too.

Hitching up her trousers—she had spent the day shopping and was still in her rough attire—she passed her other hand across the same chin and scowling savagely bent down to enter the bungalow and make herself presentable against Jeejeebhoy's arrival.

Meanwhile Reginald, clad in a beautiful gown of diaphanous material, was strolling along the Praya whistling softly to the fish as they came to the surface to take an occasional breath. Now and then he took a little make-up box from his intimate pocket and had a peep at himself.

(To be continued. Don't cease to buy the Telegraph, folks! We haven't near finished yet. What will Reginald do when he sees himself in the mirror? What would you do? That is the human problem that will keep us up to-night slapping out another column of literary hogwash until we can bring Madge and Reg face to face. What a meeting! See to-morrow's semi-final instalment.)

CATS' LESSON.

You big Tom Cat! What ails you that, each quiet night, becomes affright, before your walls? What dreadful emotion causes commotion as the moon pales?

Don't tell us that you've caught a rat! Such innocent joy, you daily do play, without acrimony; some new element, has found a free vent, in dreadful harmony!

But though our sleep is broken, so's yours. The same token, is good for us both. And perhaps the pleasure, in which you spend your leisure, might not find us loth!

So stick to your tiles; we have different styles, that's all there is to it. But take some advice, though courting is nice, don't overdo it!

Just watch your carriage, or you'll have a mis-marriage. By George how we know it. But then you can't hear us, you big ignoramus, we might as well stow it.

"How old do you think she really is?"

FEARS OF DISPUTE REMOVED

TURKEY TAKING NO ACTION

London, June 11.

The recent suggestion that the status of the International Commission in the Dardanelles was being challenged by the Turkish Government appears to have been mistaken.

The Turkish Government have no intention at the present time of refusing to recognize the validity of the clause governing the control of the Straits.

Replying in the House of Commons to-day to questions regarding possible modification of certain provisions of the Lausanne peace settlement, dealing with the demilitarized zones adjoining the Dardanelles and Bosphorus, Sir John Simon said the matter was tentatively raised over a year ago by the Turkish delegate before the General Commission of the Disarmament Conference at Geneva.

It had not formed the subject of specific representations to His Majesty's Government.

The question having, however, more than once been alluded to by Turkish Ministers in conversation, he took a recent opportunity of mentioning it to the Turkish Foreign Minister at Geneva.

His Excellency then assured him that, in the present circumstances, the Turkish Government did not propose to pursue the matter.—British Wireless.

tion must be ascribed unemployment and many major ills.

NON-CO-OPERATION.

The objective desired by Dr. Tugwell is a continuity of industry—by which he means ample and stable employment and the maintenance of a relationship between prices of all commodities which will enable industries to exist and perhaps enable all the people to prosper.

One thing puzzles the professor more than any other. He cannot understand the non-co-operative spirit recently manifest in industry's relationship with the New Deal.

It is strange, he mused, that industrialists are not willing to give up a little to gain much.

And there lies the root of dispute between Prof. Tugwell and those who see in him red revolution. The professor is convinced that many forces now allied against the administration stand to gain rather than to lose from Mr. Roosevelt's programme.

PERSONAL LAMENT.

His personal lament is that his influence with the administration is over-estimated by almost everyone. He is enjoying himself in Washington but will not be sorry to return to his professor's chair at Columbia University. He conceives himself to be a champion of democracy, and is convinced that reform or recovery or whatever it is, in the United States, has only begun.—United Press.

ELGAR LEAVES £13,934

FORMER REQUESTS CANCELLED

The estate of Sir Edward Elgar, the composer and Master of the King's Music, has been valued for probate at £13,934. Sir Edward, who was 76 years old, is described as of Broadheath, Worcestershire, and Marl Bank, Rainbow Hill, Worcester.

The will says:

"I regret that owing to the sudden collapse of everything artistic and commercial I have found it necessary to revoke the will which I had previously made and to make this present will. I leave nothing to my charity, as I have given everything possible during my life and I much regret that it is now necessary for me to cancel the legacies which it had been my purpose to leave to servants and friends and institutions."

The bulk of his property is left upon trust for his daughter for life and then to nephews and nieces.

GAS EXPLOSION INQUIRY.

PLATE SAGGING OUT OF GASOMETER

Evidence that he had seen a large plate sagging out on a side at the top of the gasometer, shortly before he heard the sound of the explosion was given by Leung So, unemployed, at the resumed inquiry into the West Point gasworks explosion before Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon.

The witness, who lost his younger brother and a niece in the disaster, related how he saw a black cloud emerge from the gasometer, and turn into yellow as it reached the shop in Clarence Terrace, where he was. His two nieces and brother had left the shop shortly before. He was burnt about the head and hands. His brother and niece died in hospital.

The Jury sitting on the inquiry comprised Messrs. P. Teater (foreman), L. Dunbar and D. Drummond.

Mr. W. A. MacKinnay is appearing for the Gas Company, and Mr. W. M. Brown represents the interests of certain owners whose property was damaged.

Black Cloud in Cubicle.

Chan Yau, married woman, who was residing at No. 10 Clarence Terrace, third floor, said that she was in the front cubicle when she heard a noise as of a house collapsing. She heard a second explosion, and then a black cloud seemed to come into the cubicle, and she smelt gas. The top of the bed curtain caught fire, and her husband stamped the flames out. There was no light in the flat. The black cloud came into the flat, spread, and then ignited, though she did not know how. She ran out, and as she got out of the floor, she saw flames on the terrace, but saw two Indians lying on the ground beside the gasometer. She did not notice whether they were moving or not, and did not notice whether the gasometer was down or up. Her husband escaped with her.

Leung So, unemployed, said he was residing with his uncle in No. 13 Chung Shing Street, first floor. About 10 a.m. he went to No. 10 Po Tak Street, third floor with his younger brother, to visit his sister. Later he left with his brother and two nieces. When they reached Clarence Terrace, the children went to a grocer's shop to buy something to eat. He stayed inside the shop to settle the account, while the children went out.

Plate Out of Position.

He then noticed a small crack on the gasometer, and a large plate appeared to be out of position, leaving an opening. The plate was at the top of the gasometer with one or two plates between itself and the top.

A black cloud came out from the gasometer, and he started to run out of the shop, but turned back when he saw the cloud suddenly turn yellow. The yellow smoke may have been flames, because he was burnt on his hands and face. The paper in the shop caught fire. He did not notice any light in the shop. When he ran into the passageway of the shop after he had been burnt, he heard a loud bang. He made his escape through the back door.

Two of the children who had left the shop were burnt and died later. He ran out at the back of Clarence Terrace and found his brother at the far end, with his head and hands burnt. His brother died later. He saw four houses on fire in Clarence Terrace. He then went to the G. C. H.

Mr. MacKinnay: Was the whole of the plate out of position?

Witness: It was slanting out, slightly out of position, the top being further away from the gasometer.

Mr. MacKinnay: Was the whole of the plate sagging outward?

Witness: I could not say whether the base of the plate was still adhering to the gasometer or not.

Mr. Brown: Did you smell any gas immediately after you saw the plate out of place?

Witness: I did not. Mr. Brown: When did you smell the gas?

Witness: I was too frightened to notice anything.

Lam, Fat, an odd job waiter, living at No. 12 Chung Shing Street, ground floor, said that he heard an explosion, followed by a sound as of masonry falling. He looked up, and saw that the

ARMS PARLEY ADJOURNS

LITVINOFF URGES WIDER QUEST FOR PACTS

Geneva, June 11. The General Commission of the Disarmament Conference has adjourned since die.

Italy and Hungary announced that they would observe only the work of the Security Committee.

Britain announced she would aid the Committee but would sign no pact.

M. Litvinoff, Russian, proposed the Security Committee should also consider general universal pacts and not restrict its work to European or regional accords. The delegates believe M. Litvinoff's wishes include the Far East within the system.—United Press.

Disarmament Plans

London, June 11. The General Commission of the Disarmament Conference meets to-day to put into effect the procedure recommended by the compromise resolution adopted on Friday.

As the heads of all delegations, except of the United States, have left Geneva, the meeting will probably be merely formal.

One of the special committees, to be appointed in accordance with terms of the resolution, will study the possibility of concluding security agreements, and other points which are to be specially studied are the control of armaments and the manufacture of and trading in arms.—British Wireless.

Mr. Eden's Statement

London, June 11. Mr. Anthony Eden, within a few hours of his return from Geneva, on Saturday addressed his constituents at Warwick and emphasised that they must be careful not to exaggerate the significance of the Geneva Agreement, which covered only the immediate future of the Conference.

The main difficulties of the European situation had in no sense been solved, he said. Unless relations could be improved, there would be no Disarmament Agreement, no political stability and, in consequence, no extension of international trade recovery in Europe. That was the problem, but it was put, which best European statesmanship to-day, and which such statesmanship had so far signally failed to solve. But it could at least be claimed that at Geneva they had given statesmanship a further chance to find solutions in an international atmosphere which had been materially improved. Mr. Eden stated.—British Wireless.

AUSTRIAN TERRORISTS

GOVERNMENT CREATES NEW DEFENCE FORCE

Vienna, June 11. Alarmed by the fear that the recent widespread bomb outrages may affect tourist traffic, the Austrian Cabinet has created a special internal defence force to meet the organised terrorist campaign which, an official communique alleges, has been instigated from Germany.

Although members of the new force are expected to act within the limits of the law, they will be fully protected if they overstep the law through inadvertence. Stern penalties will be imposed upon those convicted of terrorist acts and the death penalty will be applied without legal delay.—Souther.

gasometer was down. He saw something like black and white smoke come out and hit the wall, and then saw fire break out at No. 13 Chung Shing Street. He was not burnt.

An Aperture.

A Chung Shing Street tenant, Ma Fung-chi, told the Court that she saw an aperture opening in the gasometer shell the moment she turned round, after hearing an explosion. A noise which she described as chao choo issued from the tank.

She dropped a bamboo drying pole she was handling, and ran away.

Tang Pui-hing, married woman, living at No. 13 Chung Shing Street, said she occupied a rear cubicle on the first floor. An explosion shattered the glass of the closed window, and a black cloud shot through the opening. She was not aware of any flame, or reflection of a flame, but her face and hair were burnt, while the back of her jacket was also scorched.

Mr. W. A. MacKinnay: Where do you think this explosion was, in the house or outside? Outside the house. Where was the smoke coming from?—I do not know. All I thought of was flight at the time. The inquiry was adjourned until to-morrow.

ADMIRALTY AS OUTFITTERS

PETTY OFFICER "RIGGED UP" FOR 50s.

NEW LIST OF PRICES

An Admiralty Fleet Order announces the revised prices for clothing and other articles which can be bought by men in the Navy. These prices are to come into force throughout the world on July 1.

On glancing at the list one is struck by the cheapness of the majority of the articles. In many cases the prices are surprising, and compare favourably with the prices at which Japanese goods have been on sale in this country, and against which there has been so great an outcry.

Striped shirts made in Japan have been on sale in this country at about 3s. 3d. each, while the British article has been priced at 4s. 11d. to 5s. 11d. at the lowest. The price of the equivalent striped shirt in the Admiralty's list is 3s. 2d.

Vests are offered by the Admiralty at 1s. 4d., whereas the average price of the Japanese article is 1s. 6d.

These, however, are a few isolated instances. Even the Admiralty cannot compete with a Japanese complete white suit, with tops and shoes, which has been on sale in Java for a mere 6s. 4s. the set.

All the same, it would be impossible for private firms in this country to compete with the Admiralty as outfitters. Adding up the prices of the various articles required to turn out a petty officer in "fore and aft" rig—the nearest approach to civilian clothing—we find that the man can be dressed completely for a shade under 50s.

This includes boots, cap, underwear, and even studs, and the uniform is of the ordinary serge as worn in this country.

SAFETY PINS AND BUTTONS.

Practically everything that the sailor needs is available in Admiralty stores. The articles in the price list range from cholera belts to beds and from safety pins at 2d. a tin, and "buttons, black, vegetable ivory, 11-16in." at 2d. a dozen, to thick overcoats at £1 9s. 6d.

The stores also cater for the man who does not like buying "off the peg," for prices are included for "made to measure" clothing.

Gold lace badges are the most expensive items in the list.

An officer's cap badge costs only 4d., less than a blue cap and 9d. more than a white cap. A "square rigged" seaman can buy a serge jumper for 5s. 10d., but if he is a leading seaman with two good conduct badges and a first-class gunlayer his gold badges will cost him 5s. 4d.

If he happens to be a qualified diver into the bargain the cost of his badges will be 7s. 4d., 1s. 6d. more than the jumper on which he has to sew them.

One of the most astonishing prices quoted in the list is that for a safety razor which is priced at only 6d.

Tobacco features in the list, and, being free of duty, the prices are eloquent of the enormously high rate of taxation to which civilian smokers are subjected.

The sailor can buy pure leaf and strip tobacco at 1s. 6d. a lb., while a half-pound tin of manufactured pipe tobacco costs him 1s., and 1s. 3d. for cigarette tobacco.

During the week-end one case each of typhoid and human rabies were reported to the local health authorities.

An unknown Chinese passenger leaped overboard from the Mongkok ferry Man Wai last night, and was drowned.

AUSTRALIA'S CHANCE OF WINNING TEST MATCH

QUICK RUNS NEEDED BEFORE LUNCH

THEN SOME ASSISTANCE FROM THE WICKET

ENGLAND WITH BACK TO THE WALL

GEARY AND HENDREN SAVE SIDE FROM UTTER COLLAPSE

WERE the first Test a play-to-a-finish match, England could regard herself as being in a highly precarious position, Australia finishing the day 265 runs ahead with seven wickets in hand.

AS it is, Australia have a chance of effecting a win, but it will require some skilful captaincy on the part of Woodfull, backed by the best efforts of his colleagues. The Australians, themselves immune from defeat, are now up against the clock. England as a team of cricketers means practically nothing to them.

WOODFULL'S problem is for the Australians to score a few more runs themselves and then dismiss England, all within the space of about six and a half playing hours.

ON the face of it a drawn game appears to be a fairly safe bet.

BUT the Australians are in this sound strategic position. They can afford to call the tune, knowing full well that under no circumstances will they have to pay the piper.

THE visitors' chief means of obtaining a win appears to be to obtain 100 odd quick runs before the lunch adjournment, thereby setting England the task of scoring the best part of 400 runs to win. After that they will have to rely on their bowlers, plus the possible assistance of a wicket wearing under the strain of four days play.

THE hope of success seems to be rather slender, for without entirely ignoring the first innings failures of the English batsmen, they still remain powerfully potential run-getters.

A GREAT deal depends on the state of the wicket. Few English cricketers stand up to four days play without some signs of breaking up towards the end, and although apparently the weather has been very generous at Nottingham, it is more than likely that half an hour after the wicket has been rolled out following the Australians' second knock, that it will begin to cut up badly.

AND if Grimmett and O'Reilly get going under such conditions, England will have to fight very hard to avoid defeat.

ENGLAND'S inconsistent batting yesterday was a big disappointment to Homesiders. Two players literally saved the team from collapse and probably the follow-on.

PATSY Hendren, who is showing a fine disregard for the undoubted efficiency of the Australian bowlers, having previously helped himself to two centuries at their expense, again batted magnificently, and with Geary, upon whose 53 it would be difficult to place a true value, pulled England out of the fire.

PRIOR to their association, England had lost six wickets for 165 runs and stood in direct danger of following on. Then came a pre-lunch stand between Hendren and Geary which carried the total to 240, while after the were added before Hendren fell a victim to O'Reilly.

ENGLAND'S "tail", the standing jokes of 1921, 1924-5, and 1926, returned in all its old-time glory, adjournment a further 26 runs

Four wickets fell for an additional two runs. Grimmett and O'Reilly, good bowlers though they are, were flattered.

GRIMMETT can still make English batsmen nervous as kittens. Just look at his figures. 38-3 overs, 24 maidens, 51 runs, 6 wickets. O'Reilly, aided by that last collapse also returned useful figures.

YES! They may prove to be very destructive to-day on that wicket.

THE early dismissal of Woodfull and Ponsford in their second innings which started after tea, meant only one thing. Australia were out for quick runs. The quicker the better. It was left to Stanley McCabe to score them.

BROWN, somewhat horrified to see Australia's two staunchest batsmen dismissed for seven runs between them, refused to play with fire, which was the reason why close of play found him 37 not out, while Bradman had come and gone for 25 and McCabe had collected 74.

DON Bradman failed again. That is judging by his own contribution of 25. But when it is appreciated that he obtained those out of 37 runs, it will be seen his innings was quite valuable, paving the way as it did for more glorious hitting by McCabe.

McCABE was positively disdainful in his treatment of Farnes, Hammond, Geary, Verity, Mitchell and Leyland. To hit a six and thirteen boundaries in the course of an hour and 25 minutes batting towards the end of a day is a trifle Jessopian. So far as the English attack was concerned, it was also very disconcerting.

ENGLAND may derive some encouragement from the fact that once before at Trent Bridge they were led on the first innings, but won the match. The only difference being on that occasion they made 426 for five declared in their second innings on the third day's play and not the last. It was in 1906.

THE unevenness of England's batting yesterday can be gauged by the fact that three batsmen between them scored 194 of the 268 runs. The remaining batsmen contributed 69 runs, an average of nearly 10 runs each.

Yesterday's Test Play Described

McCABE'S SPARKLING BATTING IN LAST HOUR AND HALF

Nottingham, June 11. Sunny weather favoured the opening of the third day's play in the First Test match at Trent Bridge when the English side resumed their innings this morning.

The wicket was in good condition and there were approximately 20,000 spectators present when the Nawab of Patnauli, who had scored six runs on Saturday, and "Patsy" Hendren, who had made ten, returned to the wickets to face the Australian attack with the total standing at 123 for four wickets.

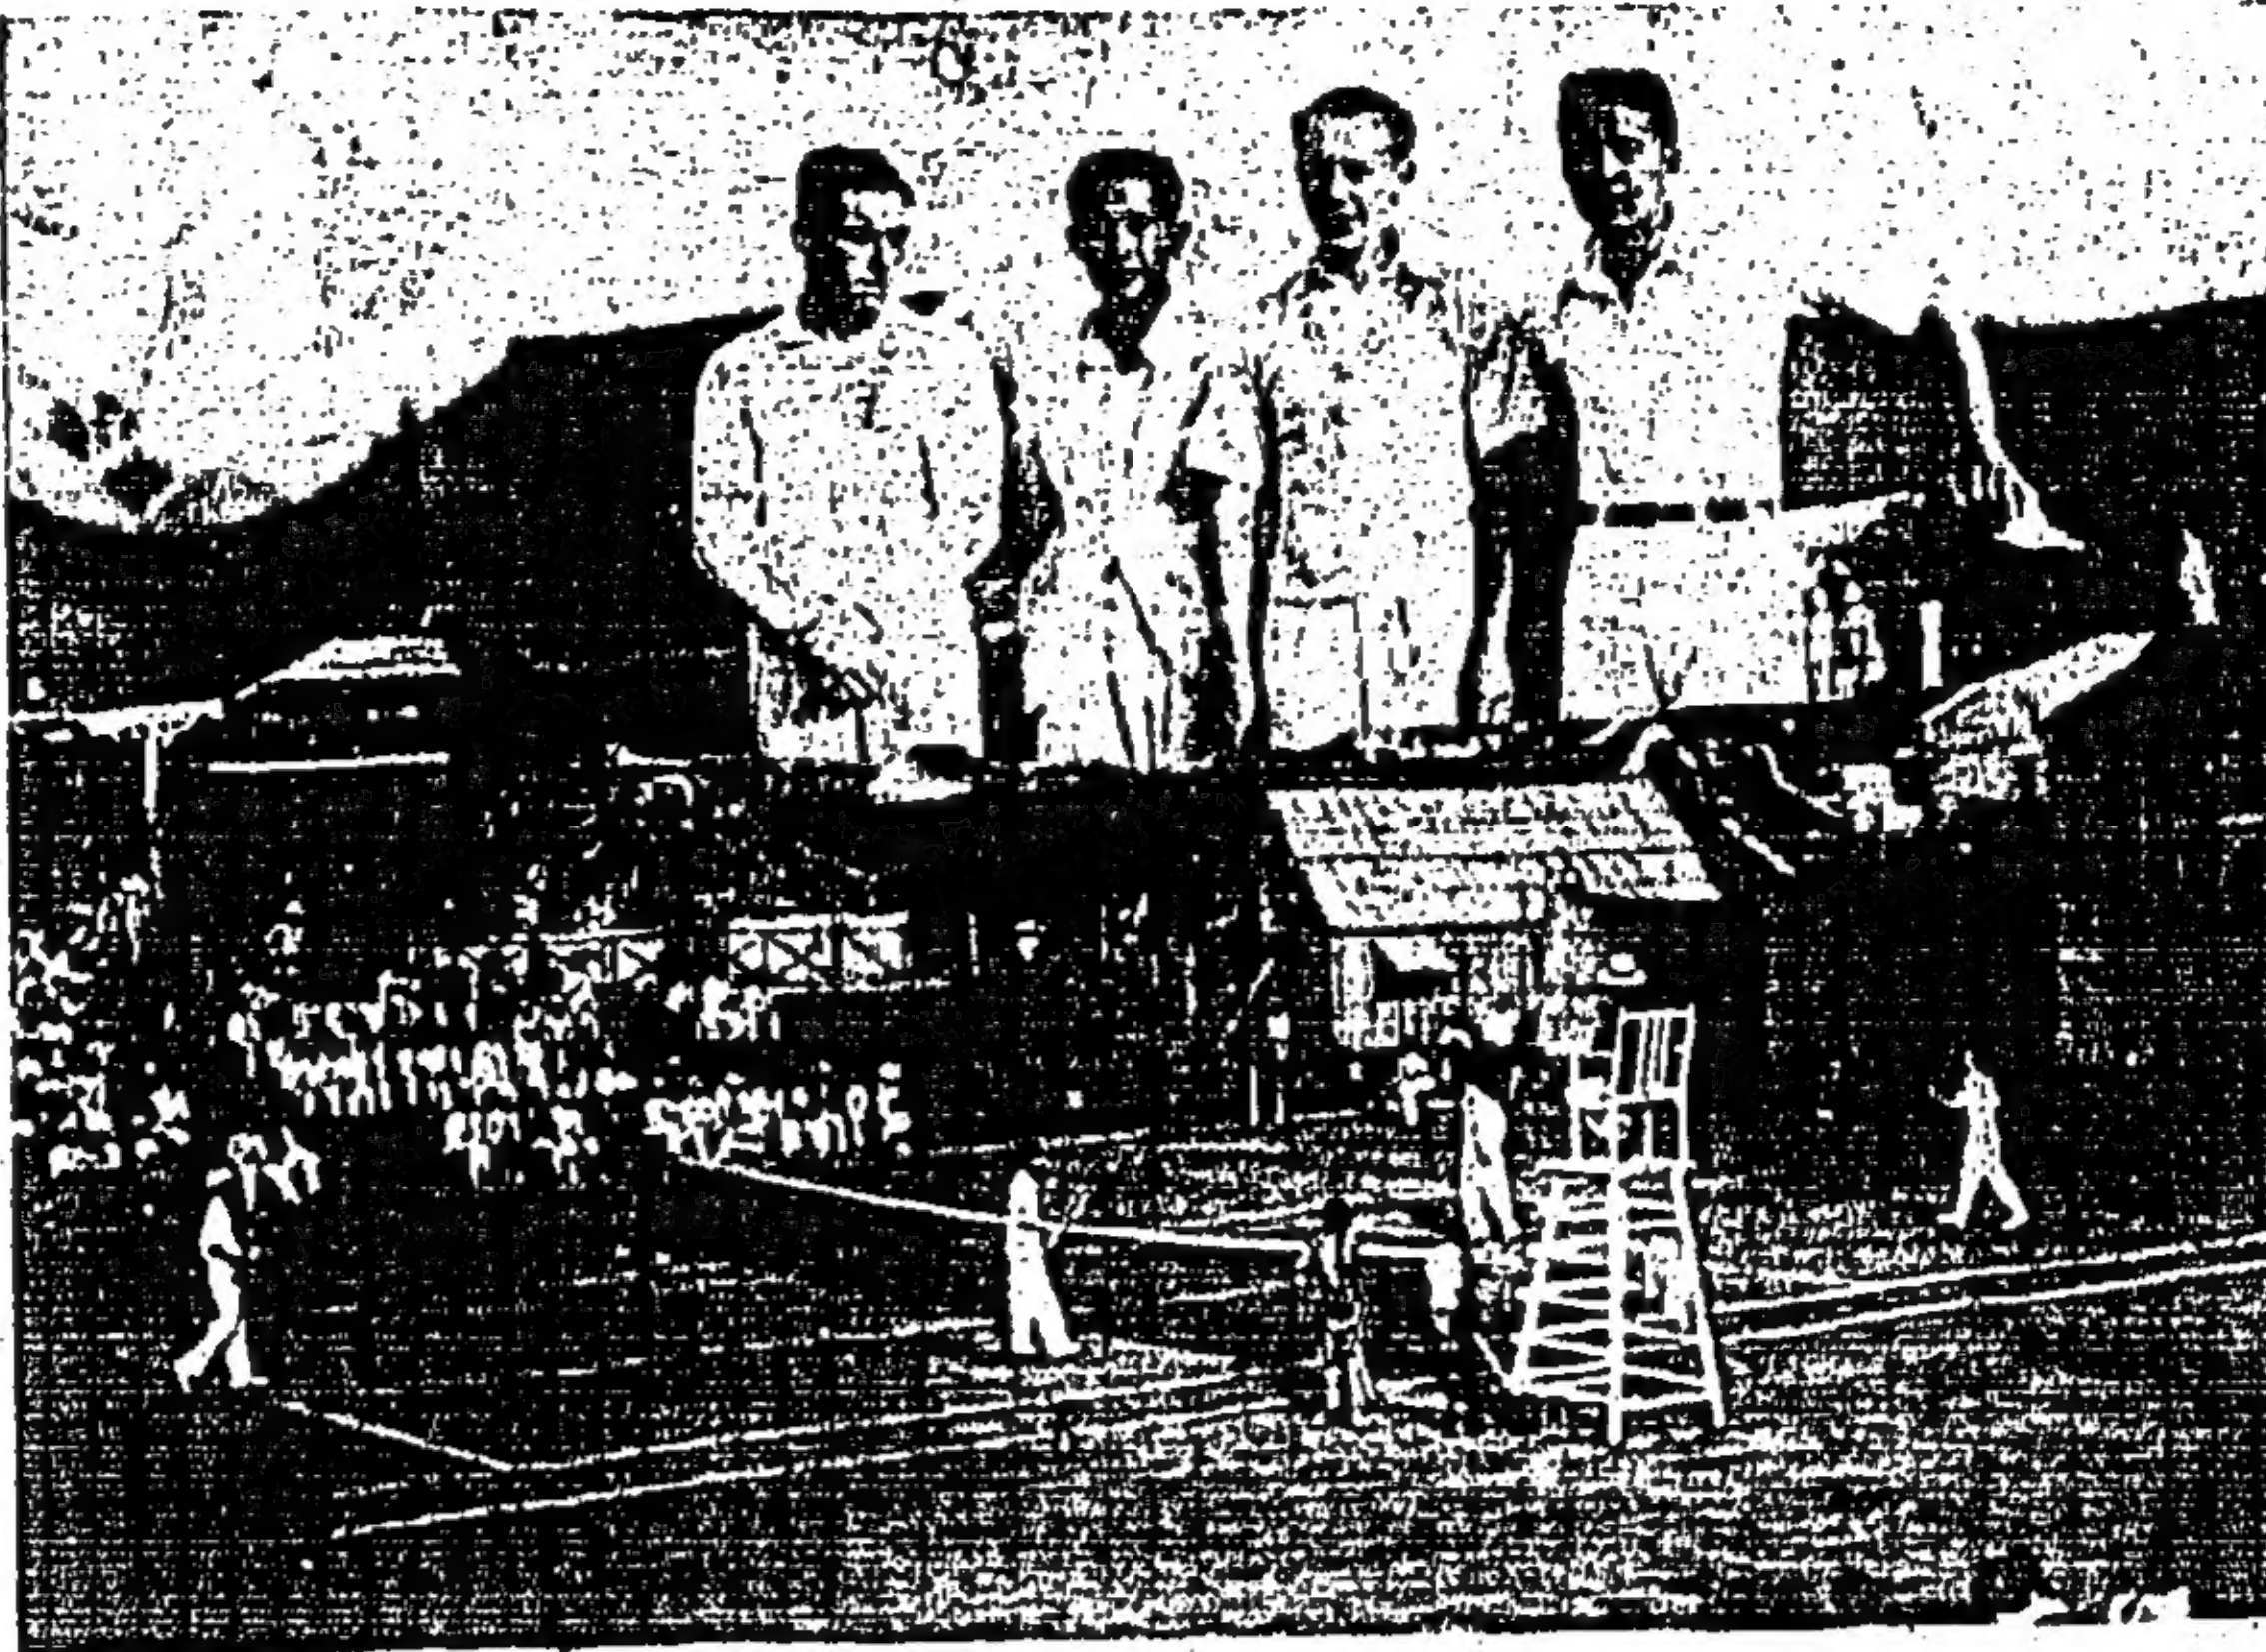

The brilliant young Indian player was the first to leave when he had taken his individual score to twelve. The total was then 145 and, in attempting to play a delivery from Wall, the South Australian fast bowler, he was caught at second slip by McCabe.

The batsman had fallen into a trap set by the bowler. The Nawab just nicked the ball which flew to McCabe, who, however, failed to hold it the first time and caught it only at a second attempt. 145-5-12.

England's wicket-keeper, Leslie Ames, joined the Middlesex player at the wicket but ten runs later the Kent representative was dismissed by Wall when the batsman asked a delivery from O'Reilly to square leg. 165-6-10.

A VALUABLE STAND. George Geary, the Leicestershire bowler, filled the vacancy and he and Hendren made a gallant attempt to retrieve what was threatening to develop into a disastrous situation for England. The pair played the bowling with more confidence than any of the previous batsmen and took the

ENGLAND'S DAVIS CUP POSSIBILITIES

PROSPECTS CONTINUE TO BRIGHTEN DECLARES CRITIC

NO PRACTICAL REASON WHY TROPHY SHOULD NOT BE RETAINED

At the close of the Hard Court Championships at Bournemouth, which on the men's side have provided some exciting battles between the representatives of England, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, France, and Japan, an appropriate moment has been reached for some comments on the Davis Cup outlook for 1934 writes Sir F. Gordon Lowe.

As all the world knows, our Davis Cup team, Perry, Austin, Hughes, and Lee, brought the coveted cup back to these shores last July after an absence of 21 years, and are now able to sit back in comfort and prepare for the challenge round, while other nations will be battling throughout the season in the preliminary competitions.

Britain's chance of holding what she so nobly won in 1933 seems to improve with each successive week.

Everything, of course, depends on whether Perry and Austin can be brought to the post fit and well, and not overplayed.

Perry is in the pink of condition and just in the mood for a hard season's play, as he showed at Bournemouth by shouldering the full responsibility for us in the absence of Austin and Hughes.

The confidence of Perry and Hughes in themselves as a pair has been considerably increased since they carried off the Australian doubles; this feat, by the way, pleased Perry far more than his success in the singles.

With this year's challenge round being staged over the week-end, there should be no question of Roper Barrett having to rest Perry in the doubles. With Sunday coming in between he cannot have three consecutive days' play.

Our Davis Cup reserve, Harold Lee, appeared stale at Bournemouth when he went down easily to that testing player, Avory. I hear that Lee, through business reasons, may not be seen in the courts so much this season.

PRAISE FOR HARE.

With the brilliant exception of young Hare, our second line of defence was disappointing. There can be nothing but praise for Hare, although in the end he fell too easily to boy McGrath. By his defeat of Merlin, France's young Davis Cup hope, Hare did more than enough to show his promise.

He has all the attributes of a future champion—a fine temperament, first-class strokes, coupled with a destructive service, and the ability to "scramble." This latter quality means getting the ball back somehow in a tight corner.

It looks as if either Australia or America would be our eventual Davis Cup challengers. The Australian team opened their campaign at Bournemouth strongly, in spite of only just having stepped off the boat. The 1934 Crawford is still a bit of a problem, although in his play during the week we saw glimpses of the super-player of last year.

Quist revealed himself as a great match player while snatching a victory from Daniel Frenn after a harrowing three and a half hours' struggle.

The Americans are holding a strong side. To be chosen from Shields, Allison, Wood, Loit, and Steffen, and will have their usual cake-walk through their own zone.

They are certainly more dangerous at Wimbledon than in Paris, but the British team have plenty of time to prepare for whichever nation fights through.

Is Wimbledon Held Too Late?

WHAT STATISTICS REVEAL

That the Championships meeting at Wimbledon is held one week too late in June to obtain the best chances of a dry fortnight, is the opinion of Mr. D. Dewar, of the Air Ministry, after an examination of fifty years of weather records at Kew Observatory, which has enabled him to calculate the probability of heavy, moderate, or slight rainfall not only for different weeks of the year, but at different times of the day.

Habitués of Wimbledon will admit that Mr. Dewar's findings agree closely with the type of weather experienced at Wimbledon since the war. The first week's weather has usually been better than the second.

Tournament organisers will find much of interest in the statistics Mr. Dewar has communicated to the Royal Meteorological Society. He considers that his tables will prove of value in connection with insurance events within specified periods of the day.

Thus he states that the afternoon is the wettest period of the day; heavy afternoon rain is least likely in May and September, and that the probability of afternoon rain reaches its peak in the two periods, August 21-31 and October 21-31. By means of his tables it is possible to look up the probabilities of weather conditions for any day in the year.

KENT'S SAD CRICKET FESTIVAL

AT TONBRIDGE

LANCS: OUTPLAY WORCESTER

London, June 11. The Tonbridge cricket festival opened badly for Kent, who to-day suffered their severest defeat of the season at the hands of Warwickshire, who collected the maximum points by an innings and 126 runs.

Warwick laid the foundation of their success on Saturday, when they hit up 435 by means of attractive batting in which most of the team figured prominently, and wound up the day's play by capturing two of Kent's wickets for 10 runs.

They continued the slaughter to-day, sending the home county back for 140.

Mayer, who has enjoyed previous success on the Angel Ground, was again in the lime-light, taking half the wickets for 67 runs.

Following on, Kent did little better, this time being tied down by Payne, who, by coincidence, obtained his first hat-trick in county cricket against Warwick at Tunbridge Wells some six years ago.

Payne proved extremely difficult to play, and his final figures of 6 for 39 were chiefly responsible for Kent's dismissal for 169.

WORCESTER ALSO. Worcester, playing against Lancashire, suffered a similar fate as Kent, being beaten by an innings and 192.

Lancashire made light of the task of scoring, and were able to declare at 466 for 6. Watson scored another century, his figure being 148, while Paynter, whose absence from the Test team has been the cause of considerable comment, taunted the selectors by scoring 100 not out.

Watson, not content with his batting achievement, also demonstrated his ability as a trundler, and in Worcester's first knock, which realised 149, captured 5 for 67.

Following on, the Pottersmen were sent back for 115.

TO BE GIVEN GRANTS

BORDERERS AND ST. JOSEPH'S

The Hongkong Football Association Council at the monthly meeting held last evening considered a decision made previously in connection with the division of the gate receipts taken in the match between the South Wales Borderers and St. Joseph's Football Club in the play-off for the championship.

The meeting, which was presided over by Mr. C. M. Manners, granted the two clubs concerned twenty-five per cent. of the net receipts. At the last Council meeting the request for part of the gate receipts was refused by the Council of the Hongkong Football Association to be held on Thursday, July 12 at 5.30 p.m. at the Sports Club if the Association can obtain the necessary permission from the Club's committee.

The Council, in considering the accounts for the year, granted the Secretary, Mr. G. T. May, the usual honorarium of $500.

BRITISH EMPIRE GAMES

RECORDS LIKELY TO GO

THREAT TO ENGLISH ATHLETES

England is likely to have strong opposition from the South Africans in the British Empire Championships at the London White City in August, writes Joe Binks, former mile champion.

At the South African championships, held in Queenstown, some splendid performances were seen. As usual, a brilliant sprinter, who can beat "evens" was strongly in evidence.

M. W. Theunissen, who comes from Natal, is a fine, strongly-built sprinter. He won the 100 yards in 9.4-5sec, and the 400 yards in 21.3-10sec.

Judging by the picture of the 100 yards finish, Theunissen runs with his head thrown back, after the style of Eric Liddell.

However, my friend, S. Hollen, the starter—to whom I am indebted for the programme and other items—tells me this new sprinter is "close" in every way, and some think he will beat the British record if given a fine day and a good track.

One thing is certain: Our champion, G. T. Saunders, should give the South African flier much to think about over 100 yards.

By the way, D. J. Joubert, who has won the last four years, and holds the South African record at 9.6-10 sec, was beaten into third place.

BRILLIANT HURDLER.

J. H. Viljoen won both the 220 and 220 yards hurdles brilliantly, showing 15sec and 25sec respectively. He also added the long jump at 23ft 6 1/2 in.

The wonderful all-round artist, Harry Hart, helped himself to the hammer throw (123ft 3 in), shot put (50.8), and discus (133.6). With such a great throw as 176ft 7 1/2 in, he was only third in the javelin.

Hart and Viljoen will again be the stalwarts for the South African team.

J. Luckoff threw the javelin 188ft 10 1/2 in, and must be very useful.

Among the women athletes Marjorie Clark is still supreme, and she is to come to England again. This splendid athlete won the 100 yards hurdles in 13.8-10sec, the high jump at 4ft 10 in, and was second in both the discus and shot put finals.

In 16-year-old Miss B. Burke South Africa has found a brilliant sprinter. She won her heat in 11.3-10sec, and the final in 11.2-10sec—both South African records.

Miss Burke has not been extended so far, and is evidently going to take a lot of beating at the White City.

All our leading Scottish, Welsh, and English athletes are now in strict training, and great care must be exercised.

STRENUOUS SEASON.

With the intervening County Championships, International matches, and the A.A.A. Championships our athletes realise that the period will be strenuous before the Empire Games start on Aug. 3.

However, the prospects are bright concerning such as G. H. Saunders, E. I. Davis, F. F. Wolf, D. L. Rathbone, G. L. Rampling, J. V. Powell, C. Whitehead, T. H. Scrimshaw, R. H. Thomas, J. E. Lovelock, D. O. Finlay, R. St. G. Harper, F. R. Webster, J. T. Holden, D. McNab Robertson, Dunkle Wright, R. R. Sutherland, E. Harper, and Vic Harman, to mention only a few of our "stars."

Every athlete who has the semblance of a chance of getting into the English team will want all the scratch-racing experience he can get.

WELL-KNOWN AMATEUR FOOTBALL CLUB IN UNUSUAL AFFAIR

SWISS TOUR BROUGHT TO ABRUPT END

Oxford City Making Heavy Claim For Expenses

ENGLISH F. A. TAKING UP MATTER

The Oxford City F. C. Swiss tour, organised as usual by Mr. J. R. Benson, was marred by a most unfortunate incident unprecedented in the history of these ventures.

The first match was against Kreuzlingen and was played in the evening in floodlight, the kick-off being at 8.15. The City players were entirely unfamiliar with the conditions under which this game was played. They failed to do themselves justice and were well beaten by seven goals to two.

Apparently this defeat seems to have convinced the manager of the Kreuzlingen Club that the City team was not up to the standard he had been led to believe and things began to move.

However, the City played a second match against Lustenau (Austria) and were again beaten by 2-1.

MR. BENSON'S STATEMENT.

What subsequently happened is best described in an interview with Mr. J. R. Benson, who said:

"It was the autocratic attitude of the manager of the Kreuzlingen Football Club, The Swiss Football Association were not aware of any complications until appealed to by members of the Oxford City Club whilst travelling through Bern.

"The Swiss Football Association stated that the Club had no right to refuse anything, and gave us permission to fix up any other matches. When we got to Montreux, where we had arranged another fixture, the manager of the Kreuzlingen Club had already sent a wire stating in effect that we (the City) had cancelled the tour, and on receiving the wire the Montreux Club re-arranged a League fixture that was postponed.

"I should also like it to be known that any expense which we incurred after reaching Montreux will not come out of the funds of the Club. It was all met by the generosity of members of the party."

The effect of this attitude on the part of a Swiss Club official was that the three remaining matches of the tour against St. Gallen Zurich and Montreux Sports had been cancelled and the members of the party devoted the time to additional rounds of sight-seeing, and apparently had, in spite of the football contretemps, a most enjoyable time.

THE F. A. ASK FOR PARTICULARS

On his arrival in England, Mr. Benson immediately communicated with Sir Frederick Wall, the secretary of the Football Association, placing all the facts before him.

Sir Frederick asked Mr. Benson to forward his claim for compensation against the Kreuzlingen Club and promised him that the F.A. would go fully into details.

Subsequently Mr. J. R. Benson, president of the Oxford City Club, accompanied by Mr. H. W. Thompson, the old Oxford Blue, a member of the committee, travelled to London to interview the Secretary of the F.A. After the interview, Mr. Benson said that Sir Frederick Wall showed great interest in the case he (Mr. Benson) had laid before him. The conference lasted about an hour and, added Mr. Benson, "I think I may say that we were able to reveal to Sir Frederick some facts which rather changed his view."

"One thing we were able to establish definitely is that the Swiss F.A. were not responsible for cancelling the tour, and, in fact were not aware of the persons concerned having done so at the time."

On his return to Oxford, Mr. Benson was met by a Press representative.

"There is little I can say about my interview with Sir Frederick Wall," he declared. "On behalf of the Oxford City Club I put forward a detailed case of what happened, and I was corroborated by Mr. H. W. Thompson."

THE VALUE OF A LINGUIST.

"Mr. Thompson can speak German fluently, and when the trouble arose with the manager of the Kreuzlingen Club he was able, better than any of the rest of the party, to understand what was being said. From my point of view, it was very difficult for me to enter into an argument because of the language difficulty."

"Sir Frederick has received a statement from the Swiss Club, and he told me that he would have been glad if he had had our explanation before. "He now desires me to make a full written statement of our position, which, when he has considered it, will be sent to the Kreuzlingen Club for their observation. These observations will then, I suppose, be sent back to Sir Frederick and will then be submitted to the committee."

"This, of course, will take some time and I cannot say when the matter will be straightened out."

"Several hundreds of pounds are involved, and I intend to claim for the whole of the guarantee originally made by the Kreuzlingen Club."

"It was not until we met Mr. Norman Smith, the English representative of the Swiss Club, at Victoria on our departure that we had any idea we should be called upon to play the first match by floodlight."

"The Swiss F.A. deny the statement of the manager of the Kreuzlingen Club that they cancelled the tour. In fact,

OMAR ELIMINATES LUZ

OTHER MATCHES

One of the best matches to date in the present season's lawn bowls open singles championship was that played yesterday evening on the Civil Service C. C. green between U. M. Omar and R. F. Luz in the first round.

Both players produced bowls of a good standard and although Omar had a commanding lead of 18 shots to 13 on the 17th head, a four by Luz made it anybody's match. On the 19th head Luz scored a single to level the scores at 18 all but Omar registered a win and a two to win by 21-18.

D. Rumbold, of the Craigengower C.C. beat W. McLeod in an exciting contest on the Hongkong Football Club green by 22-20 after the score was 20-20 on the 22nd head.

On the Club de Recreo green, J. Fraser, of the Kowloon C. C., met his clubmate, W. Mulcahy, whom he easily defeated by 21 shots to five. On the same green, J. K. Sloan, of the Electric R. C. also gained an easy victory defeating R. C. Craig, of the Kowloon Dock R. C. by 21 shots to seven.

On the Kowloon Bowling Green Club green, B. W. Bradbury, of Craigengower C. C., defeated F. X. M. Silva, of the Recreo, by 21 shots to eight.

At the Yacht Club, J. Tolan accounted for A. F. Paul by 21-13.

In a Pairs Championship tie, A. E. Coates and Mr. J. Medina entered the third round by beating G. L. Buchanan and H. Beer by 21-13.

HEADING FOR THE CHAMPIONSHIP

U. S. R. C. Score Third Mixed Double Win

Holders of the Dunlop Shield, the Chinese R. C. were beaten for the second time this season when they met the U. S. R. C. at Causeway Bay, losing by 8½ sets to half. Scores:

Ng Sze-kwong and Mrs. Chiu Chun-chiu (Chinese R. C.) lost to L. Goldman and Mrs. Kayll, 3-6; drew with Capt. P. S. Cannon and Mrs. Lewis Bryan, 6-6; lost to Major and Mrs. R. L. Whittington, 2-6.

W. C. Hung and Mrs. Cheung Woon-wai (Chinese R. C.) lost to Goldman and Mrs. Kayll, 1-6; lost to Cannon and Mrs. Lewis Bryan, 5-7; lost to Major and Mrs. Whittington, 6-6; lost to Major and Mrs. Whittington, 3-6; lost to Major and Mrs. Whittington, 3-6.

One thing we were able to establish definitely is that the Swiss F.A. were not responsible for cancelling the tour, and, in fact were not aware of the persons concerned having done so at the time."

On his return to Oxford, Mr. Benson was met by a Press representative.

"There is little I can say about my interview with Sir Frederick Wall," he declared. "On behalf of the Oxford City Club I put forward a detailed case of what happened, and I was corroborated by Mr. H. W. Thompson."

"The Swiss F.A. deny the statement of the manager of the Kreuzlingen Club that they cancelled the tour. In fact,

"Mr. Thompson can speak German fluently, and when the trouble arose with the manager of the Kreuzlingen Club he was able, better than any of the rest of the party, to understand what was being said. From my point of view, it was very difficult for me to enter into an argument because of the language difficulty."

"Sir Frederick has received a statement from the Swiss Club, and he told me that he would have been glad if he had had our explanation before. "He now desires me to make a full written statement of our position, which, when he has considered it, will be sent to the Kreuzlingen Club for their observation. These observations will then, I suppose, be sent back to Sir Frederick and will then be submitted to the committee."

"This, of course, will take some time and I cannot say when the matter will be straightened out."

"Several hundreds of pounds are involved, and I intend to claim for the whole of the guarantee originally made by the Kreuzlingen Club."

LINED UP FOR THRILLING EIGHTS RACE

The International Eights was won at Harbi, Shanghai, by Norway by half a length from England after one of the most thrilling struggles ever seen on the course. Above are shown the three crews, England, Norway and America lined up for the starting gun to send them off on the strenuous battle for supremacy in the Rowing Club's senior event. Below are shown two of the crews which competed in the Mixed Fours.

off Grimmett for 53 runs, without further addition to the score. Geary played a dour innings at first but then indulged in some hard hitting. He reached the boundary on ten occasions, cutting and driving being his strongest scoring strokes. 206-8-53.

VERITY'S "DUCK."

Farnes joined Verity but the latter was bowled for a "duck" without any alteration to the score. 206-9-0.

Mitchell, last man in, scored one run as did Farnes when the Essex amateur had his off-stump disturbed by Grimmett, who thus brought the innings to a close for 208 runs. England had taken 395 minutes in which to score their runs and are 106 runs in arrears.

Grimmett and O'Reilly, the slow bowlers, were the most successful of the trundlers and between them took nine of the wickets, Wall taking the other.

AUSTRALIA'S RETURN.

Australia went in for their second innings before the tea adjournment and quickly lost two wickets. Woodfull hooked Farnes to leg for two and in attempting a repetition of the stroke he lost his wicket, the ball taking his leg-stump. 2-1-2.

Brown relieved the Australian captain and after the score had been taken to 31 Ponsford played too late to an in-swinging from Hammond and was bowled for five. 3-1-2-5.

Bradman became associated with Brown for the third wicket and the two were still together when play was stopped for tea. The Australians had made 61 runs, Brown having scored 25 and Bradman 21.

BRADMAN FALLS.

After tea Bradman fell, taken by Ames, standing well back off Farnes. Bradman just nicked the ball. He had scored 25, 60-5-25.

McCabe joined Brown and scored rapidly. Brown was batting with Woodfull's style. He was like a rock. In the last 50 minutes he scored only three.

At the close of play Brown's score was 37 and McCabe's 74. The total was 159 for three wickets.

McCabe played a joyful innings throughout. He had hit a six and thirteen fours, and had been 85 minutes at the wicket.

sons in power and do not envisage a change in the system of the government, but the present tug-of-war in Cuba is between the conservative element, comprising the landowners, united with the middle class, on one hand, and the radicals, including the students, workers and army on the other, headed by Colonel Fulgencio Batista whose meteoric rise to power overnight is one of the most sensational careers of modern times.

diplomatic victory will satisfy the younger element remains to be seen.

In spite of all predictions that his government of force would not last more than 24 hours, Colonel Batista has succeeded in keeping power in his hands for many months, owing to his diplomatic ability to postpone a final showdown, but sooner or later he will have to decide one way or the other. Will he definitely side with the radicals and incur the displeasure of the United States, or will he turn against his old comrades with whom he celebrated his first victories by drinking barrels of beer in the street of Havana?

Will Cuba go red or remain blue? The answer is in the hands of Colonel Batista.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Luxurious gambling palaces, anchored three-miles out at sea, are pictured with faithful reality by Paramount in its exciting "Gambling Ship" which opens to-morrow at the Alhambra Theatre. The cast features Cary Grant, Benita Hume, Jack La Rue, Glenda Farrell and Roscoe Karns. Anything goes aboard the "Casino Del Mar" and the "Palace" the two rival ships of high-stakes, and everybody goes to them to do it. "Gambling Ship" is a thrill-packed drama of the modern gambling pirates of the high-seas who run these gambling boats where men go to play roulette and women to gamble. Cary Grant, recently seen opposite Mae West in "She Done Him Wrong" and with Frederic March in "The Eagle and The Hawk," is a high-tension gambler, riding high, wide and handsome through the thrill and excitement of the "Casino Del Mar." Acquitted in a framed murder trial in New York, he leaves town for a vacation on the Pacific Coast. On the train Grant meets Benita Hume, in the role of Eleanor La Velle, a come-on for a West Coast gambling friend. They do not reveal their identities. When Grant arrives at the coast, he finds that his friend is being threatened by the very man who framed him on the murder charge. There are exciting scenes aboard the "Casino Del Mar" when Corbin takes charge. The boat is run wide open; the law forgotten, and Corbin used high-handed methods to beat his enemy. When his men stop the rival's boats from taking patrons out to sea, Manning comes back with a vengeance. Then in a dozen thrilling scenes, the war is on between the "Gambling Ships." A thrilling gun duel on the sea, a wild tempestuous storm in which the ship breaks anchor and runs loose and a shipwreck are among the stirring shots that go to make up a high-powered climax. In the end, Ace Corbin gets his girl and his long-sought "vacation." "Gambling Ship" is an action film in the new manner with a superlative cast. To bring to life the stirring scenes that actually do take place on board the real ships of high-stakes that ply off the West Coast. It's a true picture of high-life's latest craze and the mob's latest racket.

"Jimmy and Sally"

Claire Trevor started to work on her present film contract almost before the train which brought her to Hollywood from New York had come to a full stop. New York born and educated, at 20 a veteran of Broadway theatres, nevertheless the movies were a new world to her when she arrived in the film capital, one evening about six months ago. A Fox film studio representative met her at the station and as she was descending the steps handed her the script of her first picture with the information that she wouldn't be expected to start work until a week later the following morning. She finished that one in time to start a second and the third came the day after Number 2 was completed. The third was "The Mad Game" and in her role opposite Spencer Tracy she found her first real chance in a dramatic screen part. She played the role of a girl reporter in the story built against a background of the "snatch racket," the underworld's term for kidnapping. Other directors on the Fox lot saw parts of "The Mad Game" in the projection room and most of them wanted Miss Trevor in their next pictures. "The 'hook' went to Director James Tinling, who now has the dainty blonde actress in "Jimmy and Sally" a comedy with music, in which she is co-featured with James Dunn playing the "Jimmy" role.

WOLFRAM STOLEN?

SIAMESE ARREST NINE WORKERS ON BORDER

Rangoon, June 11. Siamese officials are reported to have arrested 70 mine officials and workers in the Tavoy District on the Burma-Siam border. The allegation is that the mine workers stole valuable quantities of wolfram in Siamese territory. —Reuter.

You'll see it on Thursday at the King's Theatre. In the cast are Harvey Stephens, Lyn Lyn, Jed Prouty, Gloria Roy, Alma Lloyd and John Arledge.

"Smoky"

Richly and dramatically filmed, the Fox picture, "Smoky," is showing today at the King's Theatre. "Smoky" is Will James' story, and the favourite of millions of readers. With the author himself as narrator, the screen play is unexcelled with an astounding degree of sincerity and authenticity. In his simple and straightforward manner, the author injects a human understanding that makes "Smoky" live like a real person. Victor Jory and Irene Bentley who have the romantic leads, are finely suited to their roles. They give splendid portrayals. All the vigour and thrills of the rodeo are splendidly portrayed. The West, with all its panoramas of beauty, is brought luxuriously to the screen. "Smoky" as a film is more thrilling than the book with which Will James has entranced a multitude of readers. Besides the excellent performances of Jory and Miss Bentley, the other members of the cast, Frank Campeau, Hank Mann, Lloy Mason, Leonid Kerejoff and Will James himself, acquit themselves admirably under the lucid and often brilliant direction of Eugene Forde. "Six of a Kind."

With six comedians, all of the first rank, in the cast, and with a story that gives each and every one of them full sway to create laughs, "Six of a Kind," the Paramount picture now showing at the Alhambra Theatre is one of the merriest film comedies seen in months. Naturally, a picture could hardly miss when it has such a cast as Charles Ruggles, Mary Boland, W.C. Fields, Alison Skipworth, George Burns and Gracie Allen. The story tells of an auto trip to California, undertaken by Mr. Ruggles and Miss Boland as Mr. and Mrs. J. Pinkham Whitney. To help defray expenses, George Burns and Gracie Allen, played by Mr. Burns and Miss Allen, go along, but the trouble they cause more than offsets any financial aid they may give. Mr. Ruggles and Miss Boland have never been better, their roles exactly fitting the whimsical humor of the former and the helpless style of the latter. Mr. Fields is, as always, the life of the party. His comedy seems to grow richer with each successive picture. For the first time since he entered pictures, he does some of his old-time larking, and the pool table act has lost nothing of its comedy in the years that have passed. Miss Skipworth gives an excellent performance as the Duchess. The plan of teaming her with Fields seems to have been a happy thought. For the first time in pictures, George Burns and Gracie Allen have roles that carry through the entire story. In several previous pictures they have been used as comedy relief, but their work in this shows the foolishness of wasting them in bits. They are accomplished comedians, and Gracie is good for a laugh every time she opens her mouth. The direction was in the hands of Leo McCarey, who proves again that, when it comes to handling comedies, he has no superiors.

MARRIED FLIRTS

But tears pricked at her eyelids. She swallowed hard. Why, she was being just a baby! She'd had to eat her dinner alone, before this. What was the matter with her?

The chop and the baked potato and the spinach all tasted like dust and ashes to her. She picked up a magazine and tried to read but the type all swam together. The stories were trite and uninteresting. What was she doing, high up above the uncaring city, alone? She needed laughter and good talk and the kind faces of friends.

She piled the dishes in the sink, resolving to wash them later. Slipping quietly past the bedroom in which David slept, she washed and powdered and donned her black frock. If she had to be alone, at least she could make herself fresh and presentable. Nothing would happen... nothing ever happened to her any more. Her life was at a standstill.

The doorbell rang resoundingly, as if in answer to this thought. Flushing to answer it, she cried in amazement. "Why, Hunt! Where on earth did you drop from?"

HENDON DISPLAY.

PRINCE OF WALES TO ATTEND
R.A.F. SHOW

London, June 11.
H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, who is an Air-Marshal in the Royal Air Force, will represent the King at the Royal Air Force display at Hendon on June 30.

A special exhibition of aircraft equipment will be on view in connection with the display, and will be particularly interesting to visitors who are concerned with the vast field of research, experiment and manufacture.

In addition to purely service exhibits, the principal aircraft, aero-engine and accessory manufacturers in Britain are exhibiting.

Practically all the members of the Diplomatic Corps in London have indicated their intention of being present to witness the display of flying, for which many spectacular events have been arranged.—British Wireless.

TEA DUTY STAYS.

GRENELL'S PROPOSAL DEFEATED

London, June 11.
A proposal to abolish the Tea Duty, moved by Mr. David Grenell, Labour member for Glamorgan-shire, in the House of Commons, was rejected in the Committee stage of the Finance Bill by a vote of 265 to 43.

Mr. Hore-Belisha, Financial Secretary of the Treasury, said there was no ground in logic or argument for the repeal of a duty which was bringing in a revenue of £4,000,000 annually.

Mr. F. A. McQuisten, Unionist for Springburn, pointed out that when the Tea Duty was taken off the markets would be flooded with cheap rubbish, nasty teas, mainly from the Dutch East Indies. The reimposition of the duty made the selling of rubbish unremunerative.—Reuter.

PANTER EXPELLED FROM GERMANY.

STRANGE ACTION BY NAZI AUTHORITIES

Berlin, June 11.
Mr. Neel Panter, the Berlin correspondent for the London Daily Telegraph, who was arrested by the Nazis on October 24 last and subsequently released without having a charge preferred against him, has now been labelled a "British military spy" and expelled from Germany.

Relying on Sir John Simon's statement in the House of Commons, after his release, that he was free to return to Germany, Mr. Panter left for Berlin for his paper and on arrival there reported at the British Embassy.

Later, however, Herr Hans Staengel, Chief of the Nazi Press Bureau, issued a statement accusing both Panter and Mr. Pembroke-Stevens (Berlin correspondent for the Daily Express who was arrested by German secret police on May 16) with being military spies.

Upon learning of the accusation, Mr. Panter immediately left Berlin for England.

However, while his train was passing through Hanover, Nazi police officers entered Panter's carriage, marked his passport "Expelled from Germany," and ordered him not to leave the carriage before the frontier was crossed.—Reuter.

CHINESE WEDDING

GRADUATE OF UNIVERSITY OF HONGKONG

A Chinese wedding of much social interest was solemnised yesterday afternoon at the Hongkong Hotel, when Miss Shum Yuen-ying, eldest daughter of Mr. Shum Yip-tong, well-known merchant and owner of Chinese newspapers in Hongkong and Canton, was married to Mr. Hui Chung-shing, brother of Mr. Hui Pak-mi, prominent local resident. The marriage was conducted under Chinese rites, the Hon. S. W. Tso officiating.

The bride, who was charmingly attired in a long satin gown with white lace and trimmings, set off with a white embroidered tulle veil and crown, was given away by her father, while Miss Elvina Tan and Miss Hui Woon-kwun were the two bridesmaids. The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Yu Ping-chou as best man, assisted by Mr. Lui Fung-ting.

In proposing the toast of the happy couple, the Hon. Mr. S. W. Tso said that for many years he knew the family and the father of the bridegroom, who was a student in the Engineering Faculty of the Hongkong University, while the bride was a graduate of the St. Paul's Girls' School and of the St. Agnes' Girls' College. The happy couple were nicely matched both in their academic accomplishments and the distinction of their families. Mr. Tso concluded by wishing the young couple every happiness and prosperity.

The reception, subsequently held at the Hotel, was attended by over three hundred guests, among whom were many of the Colony's notable residents and members of the Hongkong University.

TERRIFIC RAINSTORM.

HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE
FEARED IN AMERICA

San Salvador, June 11.
Considerable loss of life is feared as the result of a terrific rain-storm in San Salvador.

A raging torrent swept through the capital carrying away the debris of a hundred shacks and houses. The lower part of the town is completely under water. Electric light and power lines were destroyed and traffic suspended. Communications with the interior are interrupted.—Reuter.

HOIHOW SHOOTING MYSTERY: BRITON KILLED

SEVEN BURNED TO DEATH

AIRLINER CRASH
IN CATSKILLS

PLANE MISSING
FOR 36 HOURS

New York, June 11.

Extensive land and air searches for a missing giant passenger-carrying air-mail plane to-day revealed another serious tragedy of the air.

The airliner, which was bound from Newark to Chicago, was found in the Catskill Mountains, near Albany, New York State, completely burned out.

The mishap had occurred about thirty-six hours before.

Examination of the wreck seems to suggest that the plane crashed and caught fire.

All seven occupants of the machine were burned to death.—United Press.

TWO OTHER FATAL CRASHES

In Argentine And France

London, June 12.

Yesterday was a bad day for aircraft for in addition to the American disaster in the Catskills, two other major tragedies are reported.

Reuters' correspondent in Buenos Aires states that five were killed and five injured when the Trans-Andean airliner, from Buenos Aires to Santiago, crashed at Junin, in the Argentine.

Two were killed, burned to death, and two seriously injured, at Chartres, France, when a military bomber crashed on to the roof of a house and burst into flames.—Reuter.

LIMITATION OF NAVAL AIRCRAFT

U.S. Expected to Object to British Proposal

(Special to "Telegraph")

Washington, June 11.

It is believed in usually well-informed quarters that Britain is formulating proposals for the limitation of naval aircraft at the 1935 naval conference.

No information is available concerning the nature of the likely British proposals, but it is expected that the United States Government will object.—United Press.

CHINA SQUADRON AT WEIHAIWEI

ADMIRAL DREYER ARRIVES

Weihaiwei, June 12.

Admiral Sir Frederic Dreyer, aboard H.M.S. Suffolk, arrived here at 10.30 a.m. to-day.

Practically the whole of the China Squadron is now assembled here, including H.M.S. Cornwall, H.M.S. Dorwick, H.M.S. Cumberland, H.M.S. Eagle, H.M.S. Medway, H.M.S. Adventure, several sloops and destroyers and the submarines.—Reuter.

MALAYA TEXTILE QUOTAS

Re-Export Depots To Be Established

Singapore, June 12.

The Legislative Council has passed an Ordinance imposing quotas for foreign textiles, aimed against Japan.

The Ordinance contains a clause establishing re-export depots in order to cause the minimum possible interference with the entrepot trade.—Reuter.

BANDIT BLACKMAIL

TWO LAKHS DEMAND ON MISSION

MURDER GANG RESPONSIBLE

Shanghai, June 12.

A correspondent in North China reports the receipt by the Southern Presbyterian Mission in Haichow of a letter from a bandit organisation demanding the payment of $200,000.

The letter explains that "our ammunition and arms are insufficient. If the sum is not forthcoming within two or three months, the penalty is death."

The first two of the four names signed on the document are those of well-known bandit chiefs who have been responsible for many outrages and who were behind the capture and murder of Mr. J. W. Vinson two years ago.

Such blackmail letters have been constantly received by wealthy Chinese in the Haichow district and the bandits are constantly carrying out their threats, but this is the first time that the Presbyterian missionaries have been singled out for such threats.—Reuter.

HEATH ROBINSONIAN WARSHIP

New Design Ship Plan Rejected

(Special to "Telegraph")

Washington, June 11.

A proposal recently submitted to the general board of the Navy for a new design in warships that might have revolutionised navy work, has been rejected.

The scheme, generally, was for the construction of an experimental flying-deck cruiser.

It was rejected by the General Board on the ground that the design suggested was not feasible.—United Press.

SHOWERY WEATHER

Pressure is highest over the Pacific to the east of Japan. Depressions are situated over South Manchuria and to the north-east of the Bonins. Local forecast:—South or variable winds, moderate; cloudy, showery.

Fading from a plank into shallow water at the South China Bathing Pavilion, a Chinese was injured, being later conveyed to the Government Civil Hospital.

FIVE OTHERS WOUNDED

NO REPORT ON CIRCUMSTANCES

A CLASH WITH SMUGGLERS?

VICTIM POPULAR IN HONGKONG

Mr. E. R. Collier, popular British member of the Chinese Maritimes Customs service and fairly well known in Hongkong, lost his life in Hoihow by shooting yesterday in circumstances which are not yet known.

It is understood that Mr. Collier was shot dead and that five other members of the Customs staff in Hoihow were wounded, but the local office of the Customs is without information about the manner in which the casualties occurred.

It is surmised that Mr. Collier was in charge of a revenue-cruiser that came into conflict with a force of armed smugglers or pirates. It is possible, of course, that the party were attacked on land.

SCANTY DETAILS.

There is no information to show whether any of the other victims of the incident were Europeans or not, although it is presumed that they were all Chinese.

The local Commissioner informed the Telegraph that the only facts received were contained in a brief cable message in connection with arrangements for the burial of the late Mr. Collier in Hongkong.

HEAD OFFICE MYSTIFIED.

Mystification is added to the affair by the fact that the head office of the Chinese Maritimes Customs has not yet received a report on the shooting.

Enquiries made through the United Press in Shanghai, resulted in the following reply:

"The Inspector-General has not been informed of the Hoihow incident."

SERVED IN HONGKONG.

The late Mr. E. R. Collier was thirty-two years of age and had been in the Chinese Maritimes Customs since 1923.

He was well-known in Hongkong where he served for some time as Transport Officer and officer in charge of the launch, Cheong Keng.

He returned from home furlough fairly recently.

After his service in Hongkong, he went to Swatow for a spell and was transferred to Hoihow quite recently.

He leaves a widow, with whom the deepest sympathy will be felt. It is understood that there are no children.

MASON WINS WELTER TITLE

"Tiger" Smith Beaten On Alleged Foul

London, June 11.

In a fifteen rounds contest at Birmingham to-night for the British welterweight championship, Harry Mason (London) defeated Len "Tiger" Smith, of Birmingham.

Smith was disqualified in the fourteenth round for an alleged foul blow.—Reuter.

According to a Reuter message received this morning from Rome, Count Sestini and Lieut. G. R. Pond, who recently flew the Atlantic after experiencing engine trouble, have completed their journey and have arrived in Rome from London. It is their plan to start upon a return flight, across the Atlantic from East to West, shortly.

Convent Bombed In Spain

SERIOUS FIGHTING IN STRIKE AREA

OVERFLOWING PRISONS

(Special to "Telegraph")

Madrid, June 11.

Despite an official assurance that all is quiet, the rumour persists that a serious clash has occurred in the south of Spain between the striking peasants and the police.

According to the report, there has been considerable bloodshed in the fighting, the strikers fighting desperately. Several are said to have been killed.

Military reinforcements have been sent to Badajoz Province.

PRISONS CROWD.

It is understood that they have been sent to do the harvesting, the strikers declaring that they will let the crops rot rather than give in.

The local military hospital has been converted into a prison as all other prisons are teeming with arrested peasants.

SERIOUS OUTRAGES.

A bomb was thrown during the night into the Dominican Convent at Ciudad Real. Another bomb was thrown into a private house.

A further serious manifestation of the growing antagonism of the Socialists occurred in the heart of the capital.

A group of workmen stoned a garden party at a Madrid house and fractured the skull of the small daughter of the house. The child is not expected to recover.—Reuter Special.

PRES. LINCOLN

TO ARRIVE HERE ON SCHEDULE

A telegram received this morning announces that the Dollar ship President Lincoln, which caught fire when nearing Honolulu on Thursday, will keep to her schedule and arrive at Hongkong on June 23.

No news is yet available by the local agents of the extent of the damage which the ship received, but in view of the fact that she is arriving here on time, it does not seem to have been extensive.

THE SILVER BILL PASSED

AWAITS ROOSEVELT SIGNATURE

U. S. PURCHASES IN LONDON

Washington, June 11.

The Senate to-day passed the Silver Bill, which has already completed its passage through the House of Representatives.

The Bill will now go to the President for signature.

The main provisions, it may be recalled, call for the establishment of a large silver reserve as currency backing in the ratio of 27:75 with gold. The policy is mandatory but the President is given discretion in putting the policy into effect.

Meanwhile, the United States Government is making silver purchases overseas.

Mr. Morgenthau, the Secretary of the Treasury, announced to-day that the Treasury imported five million ounces of silver from London last week.

It is understood that the assignment was paid for by the employment of the funds of the Gold Stabilisation Fund.—Reuter.

CHAN LIM-PAK CASE

COUNSEL BRIEFED FOR BOTH SIDES

It is learned that Mr. H. G. Sheldon has been retained by Messrs. Lo and Lo, to appear for the defence of Mr. Chan Lim-pak, who was remanded at the Central Police Court last week, on six charges of alleged fraudulent appropriation of money and fraudulent keeping accounts of the Nan-yang Brothers Tobacco Company, Ltd.

It is also understood that Mr. F. C. Jenkin, K.C., is being briefed by Messrs. Hastings and Co., for the prosecution, on behalf of Mr. Johnson Wong.

Mr. Chan Lim-pak will make his second formal appearance before the Magistrate to-morrow morning. He is on bail of $10,000.

A Chinese was admitted to hospital yesterday with injuries resulting from a fall into the tank of a steamer at Taikoo Dock.

damage which the ship received, but in view of the fact that she is arriving here on time, it does not seem to have been extensive.

AUSTRIA ON VERGE OF EXPLOSION

SITUATION GETTING OUT OF HAND

CHAOS FOLLOWS OUTRAGES

(Special to "Telegraph")

Vienna, June 11.

Austria to-day is virtually in a state of chaos. Anti-Government violence has grown to such proportions that the situation seems to be virtually out of control.

Both the Nazis on the one hand and the Socialists on the other are active in campaigns against the Dollfuss Dictatorship, although they are naturally working quite independently.

A feeling somewhat akin to despair pervades Vienna and a doubt exists as to the possibility of the Government being able to restore peace and order.

ALLEGIANCE DOUBTFUL.

The allegiance of some of the auxiliary forces is doubtful enough and people argue now, therefore, can the Government strengthen their position by the aid of any new voluntary force?

The Government is finding it difficult to act against the perpetrators of the outrages occurring all over the country, creating an atmosphere of fear and unrest.

DAILY BOMBINGS.

Daily bombings continue.

It is feared that if the death penalty is applied against offenders, it will intimidate only the less radical element and act only as a spur to the extremists in the Nazi and Socialist camps.—Reuter Special.

MORE OUTRAGES

LAST NIGHT

Four Injured By Bomb In Station

Vienna, June 12.

A series of outrages occurred in various parts of Austria last evening, adding to the atmosphere of uneasiness and terror.

Four were injured when a bomb exploded at the West Station, Vienna, on the arrival of the Oden express, while detonators were exploded during patriotic demonstrations in Vienna and Salzburg.

An electric pylon was destroyed by explosive at Salzburg.

HUGE HAUL OF BOMBS.

At Bludenz, the railway lines were again torn up by unknown wreckers, but they were quickly repaired.

A huge haul of hand grenades, bombs and explosive materials was found under a hut in a Vienna allotment garden.—Reuter.

CHINA CUSTOMS SURTAX

Nanking, June 12.

The National Government has approved a recommendation by the Ministry of Finance that the five per cent. ad valorem surtax on the customs rates, which expires on June 30, be maintained for another year from July 1, the reason being the necessity for tiding over financial difficulties while the programme of elimination of various forms of exorbitant taxes in the provinces is being launched.—Central News.

JUNE FIFTEENTH WAR DEBTS

Bolgars And Czechs To Default

Washington, June 11.

The diplomatic representatives in Washington of Belgium and Czechoslovakia have informed the United States Government that their governments intend to default on the war debt payments due on June 15.—Reuter.

FLOOD OF NOTE FORGERIES

CHARTERED BANK $10 BILLS

ISSUE IS TO BE WITHDRAWN

There is a flood of forged $10 notes of the Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China, in the Colony, according to the police.

It was stated in a prosecution before Mr. Macfadyen in the Central Police Court this morning that Chartered Bank notes seemed easier to forge than the notes of the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank. Detective-Sergeant T. J. Hamsley told the magistrate that he saw the manager of the Chartered Bank. The notes are now being withdrawn and new issues will be out shortly.

Chu Tak-leung, 28, was charged with the possession of three forged ten dollar notes of the Chartered Bank. A charge of uttering was withdrawn by the Police. Defendant denied knowledge of forgery.

It was stated that on Saturday morning, defendant, well-attired, went into the Myrtle's fruit and flowers shop, No. 14 Peking Road, and asked to be served with the most expensive apples. A saleswoman attended him and he withdrew a $10 note in payment. (Continued on Page 4.)

TAX DISPUTE TAKES A SERIOUS TURN

Japanese Threat to Newspaper

Kobe, June 12.

It is learned that the authorities are likely to seize the printing machinery and other movable property of the Japan Chronicle. The action has been decided upon as the result of the non-payment of municipal taxes, which the Japan Chronicle is alleged to have boycotted, together with other holders of perpetual leases.—Reuter.

OF WOMENHERE'S AN EXERCISE YOU'LL FIND EXCELLENT FOR HIP-REDUCING

By Alicia Hart

Every woman, whatever her age, desires slim hips. With the bathing season so close at hand, a slender figure is especially desirable, so if you want to look your best in your new bathing suit get busy now with daily exercises.Here is an excellent exercise that will help you to attain slim hips:
Lie flat on the floor with armsstretched out at the sides—palms down. Ankles should be together.
Keeping the spine and the back of the right hip flat on the floor, raise the left leg, cross it over the right one and point the toes. The leg and foot should be parallel to the right arm and hand, as shown in the illustration.It sounds easy but it really will be quite hard for you when you begin. As you do it, notice howthe muscles of the hips are pulled down. Ankles should be together, and stretched. Relax with ankles together and then reverse the exercise, crossing the right leg over the left. Repeat ten times the first day. After that, increase the number by five each time you do it.Of course, if you're serious about reducing your hips, you'll watch your diet too. No rich desserts, you know, and a minimum of starches.

YOUR CHILDREN.

Humour and Exciting Narrative

By Olive Roberts Barton

I was interested in seeing what they would do about Hansel and Gretel, the two children who found the witch's house in the woods all made of cake and candy, and the witch herself who cared up Hansel to fatten him for the oven.The auditorium was full to bursting with children of all ages.
The Junior League was staging a benefit for their children's fund last week. It was, "The Children's Music Box," a collection of little plays, a regular "Chauve Soiree," done up in juvenile style.It consisted of pantomime, folk-songs and dances, a comedy of Mime, excellent music, and the piece de resistance of the afternoon, "Hansel and Gretel."The March of the Wooden Soldiers greeted with cheers.
The children sat up straight on their seats.

A Child's Taste.

"The King's Breakfast" met appreciative giggles. Children love humour, and the King and Queen, enriched, and the Cow and Dairy maid struck their resplendent, amiable. Loud applause."Sur le Pont," and "Claire de Lune," French musical pantomime and dance were lovely, but I suspect the kids thought it was just being good for them. Culture food, all done up in French, although it was really very lovely.
Back in their seats—interested but not barking with joy.Then romance—"The Sleeping Beauty." Fine, but nothing to get the teeth into. No thrills much, except the ugly bad fairy and her cackle. Up in the seats again went the children. Much talking! "Now she's going toprick her finger—watch." All eyes on the spinning wheel. And that was that.The rustic before "Hansel and Gretel" presaged something. The story was long and good. It worked up to a climax. This time the children were on the edges of their chairs.I was worried when the last scene opened. There was the candy house, the cage, and the oven in full view. The programme said Hansel would be turned into a gingerbread boy. But the children knew that the witch ate little boys and wasn't particularly keen about gingerbread. Otherwise why use it like bricks to build a house of?I worried for two reasons.
Would the terrific old hag, and thank goodness she was terrific, let her cannibalistic intentions be known? Or would the whole thing be a fade-out, turned into duck soup and end in a burst of song before anything happened?What do you think? Which way did the cat jump? Well, he jumped to suit the youngsters. Hansel was bundled none too gently into his cage and Gretel forced to feed him cakes to fatten him; and altogether the big, bad witch behaved with ghouliah glee.

Excitement in Friction

Then the oven! The audience under four feet high stood up.
This was going to be good. Gretel foiled the witch and pushed her into the stove intended for her brother, then she released the very handsome Hansel and they took their strawberries and went home.Were those children tickled?
Yes, they were. If anything less "mellodramatic" had been wished on them they would have been insoluble. Of course it was all done with certain evasions of speech. A sweep of the hand without too many upsetting details.
That takes expert playwrighting.But children can stand and seem to need the excitement of danger in their action. Pirates, Indians, witches, and big bad wolves are,GLORIFYING
YOURSELFConsult a Doctor Before Cutting Down Diet

By Alicia Hart.

The woman who is serious about losing weight must realize that exercise alone will not take off excess poundage. Right food in the proper quantities is just as necessary to a slender figure as any type of exercise.A doctor should advise whether or not it is permissible for you to cut down on certain foods. Perhaps you could get him to help you figure out a reducing diet, and maybe he'll approve of only liquids one day each week. Many women set aside one day of the week on which they eat no solid food. Thin broth, tomato and fruit juices, ten glasses of water and perhaps one glass of milk are substituted. This one-day-a-week regime may improve your health as well as your figure.Eliminate fried food of all kinds and starches down to a minimum. Stewed and fresh fruits should be substituted for rich pastries and desserts that abound in calories. Thin soups and plain bouillon are better than thick, creamy varieties. To keep from getting too hungry, eat plenty of fresh vegetables. They are bulky and fill up the stomach, but at the same time, are low in calory content.Don't eat between meals unless you get so hungry that you are miserable. Then take only two or three whole wheat crackers and a couple of glasses of water.In their way delightful. At least reading about them never hurt anybody. But watch the tiny tots.
They are not quite ready for such condiments.A FURTHER SELECTION OF DECCA RECORDS.

CHAPTER XXIII

It was a nightmare—a hideous, black, absorbing nightmare. The rush home through the silent streets, slippery now, fast gliding under the moon; the first sight of the Morell house lighted through-out, with the doctor's coupe parked at the driveway. Gypsy scarcely waited for Tom to put on the brakes. She was out of the door, halfway up the stairs by the time he had fairly stopped the car.

"David... mother, how is he?" The big guest room, with its rose-garlanded paper, its peeling creamy woodwork, was one blaze of lights. Gypsy saw only the tiny figure in the luncheonette with Doctor Bannerman bending over it. There was a peculiar smell in the room. Gypsy hovered near with a kettle. Someone had made a sort of tent with sheets over the big, wide flat bed with the pineapple posts.

The doctor straightened at Gypsy's entrance. "Nothing but a little croup," he said easily. "Frightening at first, of course. Your mother had quite a turn."

Mrs. Morell began volubly to explain. Her children, she said, had never had croup. She was terrified when she heard young David's heavy breathing—when he began to choke.

"But he was perfectly well—he was fine when I left him," Gypsy kept saying in her bewilderment. Some one brought her a chair; her knees were trembling with the reaction. The baby slept quietly now, one crumpled roseleaf hand thrown above his head. Lights were turned down and the watchers in the room moved softly, speaking in whispers.

Tom told Gypsy to go to bed; he'd watch David himself. But she was stubborn. She wouldn't sleep, she told him. What was the use? She refused even to take off her frock but sat, wrapped in her woolly robe, her eyes on the crib.

She had been dancing, laughing, an hour ago. She had felt like a girl, carefree, minus responsibilities. Now she wondered at that other light-hearted self. How dreadful, how incalculable life was, always striking at you in the dark. Why, David might have died, lighting for his breath, if Mums hadn't heard him! She trembled at the thought.

She must, at last, have dozed off because when she opened her eyes again the room was very chilly and Tom, straight and tall in his dressing gown, stood beside her. "Darling, you'll make yourself ill. Lie down in the other bed in Ben's room—and I'll watch here. He'll be all right. The doctor said there were even chances he'd not be disturbed again to-night."

She was stiff, cold, aching in every limb. It was good to be cared for and comforted. The sheets between which she crept were deliciously warm. She was asleep in five minutes.

David was happy, rosy, untouched the next morning. The brief and frightening attack of croup vanished without leaving a trace—upon the baby, at least. But it had quite a lasting effect on his young mother. She discovered that the love she felt for him was tinged with fear—fear she might lose him, that something might strike, out of the dark, at his smallness and helplessness.

Yes, motherhood had changed her more than a little. It had sobered and sweetened and saddened her. It made her all at once, more womanly, more gentle, more thoughtful while the experience of being a father, she considered gravely, had altered Tom not at all. When they were together, in their own little home, and Gypsy's glowing face and bright eyes were turned up to him, Tom forgot everything except that she was his, infinitely dear and adorable. When he unlocked his own door at night it was Gypsy he wanted to see, first of all. The sound of her light laughter was the sweetest music he knew and he was still filled with wonderment at the thought that she had chosen him out of all the world. The baby came second; Gypsy was first always.

While this did not make any real difference between them, Tom was conscious that under Gypsy's love for him ran always, without change or cessation, her passionate concern for the boy. David completed the circle... he and Gypsy and David. Well, that was as it should be, he knew that. And yet... and yet... Gypsy had been more completely his before David's coming.

Perhaps it was natural, as the months went on, that he came to spend a little more of his time at the office. For one thing, there were the new demands that David's needs placed upon the Weavers' slender income. And for another, Gypsy was wrapped up in the baby's welfare. She did not feel free to go about as she had before. She was often actually too tired to go to the movies in the evening. She even urged Tom to go by himself or with the Matsens, another young couple who lived on the same floor.

At first Tom protested. No, he'd rather stay at home. He'd much rather be with her. But Gypsy was sometimes too weary to talk. She would make an excuse to creep off to bed early. Small wonder that

Tom dropped into the habit of going out without her.

Sometimes she was frightened at her own weariness and dullness and her absorption in the baby. Tom would tire of her, she would tell herself wildly, glancing at her image in the mirror. She had nothing to talk about these days. The young mothers she met in the park were deep in the mysteries of formulas and pureed carrots and orange juice. How could she, after an afternoon of this conversation, be bright and amusing for her husband? And wasn't David worth any self-sacrifice?

One evening in March they went to dine with Tom's boss, a rubicund gentleman who owned a charming house in Scarsdale. It was all very pleasant—food, host and guests. But Gypsy felt quite out of it. Her frock was unfashionable and her small talk rusty. She hadn't been to any of the new plays, she didn't do the night clubs. Her hostess was smooth, manicured, beautifully dressed and jewelled. Gypsy considered, with humorous despair, asking them to her home and gave up the project in five minutes. No, until David was a little older—until they had more room and a better servant they would have to abstain from entertaining.

The next day Gypsy made a lot of new resolutions. She would "use more" over her own looks, would never neglect cold creaming rites at night, would give herself a daily manicure. Tom had seemed to find that young copy-writer very charming last night. She, Gypsy, had been considered a most delightful companion once upon a time. Where had all her amusing repartee vanished?

When the telephone rang late that afternoon and Tom's voice came to her she was pleasantly excited. Often when he called this late it was to announce that some newspaper friend had given him second night tickets to a play.

"Yes, darling!" But her voice dwindled; the ring of pleased expectancy died out of it. He had to work? Oh, that was too bad! She had been mentally freshening up her best black frock, doing her hair.

Tom was sorry, he said. There was a big new account in the office. He hated leaving her alone but honestly he had to work on this stuff. She was a good sport. It was all right, then?

Gypsy put the telephone down with a sensation of disappointment and defeat. The long evening stretched out before her with a lonely and solitary dinner to boot. Well, it was too bad, but it couldn't be helped.

She got David ready for the night, a lovely, laughing scrap of babyhood in his ribbed nightgown. But after he had been tucked away in his crib, the light turned out and the windows opened, a feeling of deep forlornness swept over her. She stood at the kitchen window, her forehead against the cool pane, gazing down at the lighted streets below. Far to the west she could see the lights of the gay street, Broadway. An advertising sign twinkled on and off, red and yellow, red and yellow, half a block away. Night sounds, sounds of the city throwing off its daytime mood of seriousness, making ready for play, came to her faintly. The hooting of taxis, the scrape of brakes. A radio blared out across the way. Dinner music. Somewhere down in the city men and girls were dancing to the strains of that music, were dining and smoking and laughing.

By the feel of the note, the manager, Mr. O. E. Solomon, suspected that it was not genuine. He sent his "Boy" to a money changer and his suspicion was confirmed. While telephoning to the Water Police Station, defendant apparently slipped out of the shop unnoticed, for when the manager looked up when making the call he saw that defendant was no longer there. Previous to the call being made, defendant mumbled something to the effect that his master lived at No. 35 Hankow Road. He spoke Chinese when he entered the shop and then reverted to English.

FOUND IN CITY.

Acting on information, Detective Chan Sang stopped defendant in Connaught Road Central on Saturday night and on searching him found three bank notes which he suspected to be forged. He took him to Central Police Station and enquiries were made.

Mr. J. M. Pinn, clerk at the Chartered Bank, said the notes were forgeries of the type that would deceive the ordinary layman. Mr. Pinn said the signatures on the left hand side of the notes were printed and not written; the numbers were unevenly printed; the paper used was different from the genuine note; the picture on the back of the note was not clear, the colour was also different, and the general printing on the note was bad.

Det. Sergt. Hamsley said that defendant informed the Police that he got the notes from a messenger in the Great Northern Telegraph Company, but the messenger denied all knowledge of him.

Defendant, in a statement from the dock, said: "I am not the owner of the notes. They are the property of Lai Ching, of the Great Northern Telegraph Company and he gave them to me. All the notes belong to him. Last night, together with the Inspector, I went to look for him and when he was asked by the Inspector he said that he lived at the Telegraph Company, but on a second visit we were told that he had gone

HONGKONG-EUROPE SERVICE

VIA JAVA BY BOAT AND AEROPLANE

An arrangement has recently been made between the Java-China-Japan Line and the Royal Dutch Air Lines (K.L.M.) by which passengers may travel to Java by steamer and from Java to Europe by aeroplane on through tickets at reduced fares.

This will enable those of the travelling public who wish to see Bali and Java on their way to Europe to do so at their leisure and yet arrive at their destination within the time which they would need in case they travelled by a fast direct steamer.

If a direct connection should be preferred, the direct route to Batavia should be taken, there to transfer to aeroplane leaving on the day after arrival at Batavia in which case the journey from Hongkong to London takes 16 days. In case the route via Bali is taken and a week spent in visiting this island as well as Java, the trip from Hongkong to London would take 22 days.

In quoting through fares, a substantial reduction is made on the regular fares of both the J.C.J.L. and the K.L.M. and, for the benefit of those tourists who wish to fly across Java, the Sourabaya-Batavia services of the Royal Netherlands Indian Airways can be utilised in the through arrangement.

This through arrangement is available for travel from the Far East to Europe, as well as in the reverse direction, and passengers using this unique mode of travel both ways have the right to claim a return rebate on the through fare.

ELGAR LEAVES £13,934

FORMER BEQUESTS CANCELLED

The estate of Sir Edward Elgar, the composer and Master of the King's Music, has been valued for probate at £13,934. Sir Edward, who was 76 years old, is described as of Broadbent, Worcester, and Marl Bank, Rainbow Hill, Worcester.

The will says:

"I regret that owing to the sudden collapse of everything artistic and commercial I have found it necessary to revoke the will which I had previously made and to make this present will. I leave nothing to any charity, as I have given everything possible during my life and I much regret that it is now necessary for me to cancel the legacies which it had been my purpose to leave to servants and friends and institutions."

The bulk of his property is left upon trust for his daughter for life and then to nephews and nieces.

UNIVERSITY HEALTH CENTRE

ABANDONMENT OF SCHEME

FOR LACK OF SUPPORT

The fact that a scheme for the establishment of a Public Health Centre in Hongkong has had to be indefinitely postponed is revealed in the annual report of the University of Hongkong, just issued.

The report, which is signed by the Vice-Chancellor (Sir William Hornell), states that there has been no response whatever to the appeal for funds for the establishment of a Professorship of Preventive Medicine and Hygiene as a memorial to the late Sir Patrick Manson, which was made by H. E. the Governor in March of last year. The report proceeds:

SCHEME WORKED OUT.

The Government of Hongkong had in consultation with the University worked out a scheme, whereby the former would construct, equip, staff and maintain a public health centre for the western district of the City of Victoria. This centre which was to be quite close to the University would be placed in charge of a Government Public Health Officer who would also be the University's Professor of Preventive Medicine and Hygiene.

At this centre the medical students of the University would get under the general supervision and guidance of the Professor their training in all matters relating to public health and preventive medicine. The scheme is an admirable one. Government has already purchased for the Public Health Centre an excellent site immediately opposite the University.

Not only from the point of view of the University but also from that of the public health of the Colony it is a great pity that the realization of the scheme is now indefinitely postponed.

VISITOR'S VIEW.

After Sir Richard Needham had inspected the University's Faculty of Medicine he recorded a note in which he deplored that the instruction in hygiene and public health was entirely insufficient. "This branch of medicine," he said "should be given urgent attention."

Sir Richard Needham suggested that the University should lay down in its syllabus plans for adequate instruction in public health and that the assistance of the Government should be sought for facilities for the carrying out of these requirements.

SCHEME OF INSTRUCTION.

The Director of Medical and Sanitary Services has been most obliging in helping the University and with his co-operation a scheme of instruction has been worked out and is now in force. The scheme comprises practical and theoretical instruction in anti-malarial measures, port health and quarantine work, medical inspection of school children, health propaganda and child welfare, in water supply, in sewage disposal, in public health ordinances (food, housing etc.), in vital statistics and registration (births, deaths, etc.). All this instruction is being carried out for the University by officers of the Government's Medical, Sanitary and Public Works Departments.

ENGINEERS AND DIRTY WORK

UNIVERSITY REPORT COMMENTARY

H.K. GRADUATES IN ENGLAND

Industrialists in England want more of the Hongkong University's graduates than the University can at the moment supply, states Sir William Hornell, the Vice-Chancellor, in his annual report on Hongkong's premier educational institution.

Excellent reports are being received regarding the engineering graduates apprentices already sent to England—they have not only worked well, but they have adjusted themselves easily and spontaneously to the conditions which obtain in English factories and English industrial towns. They are happy and popular.

British industrialists, says the report, want graduates who have specialised in mechanical or electrical engineering not those who have taken the civil engineering course. But the civil engineers still predominate. Why is this?

DIRTY HANDS.

The usual explanation is that the Chinese who under existing social and economic conditions come to this University do not like dirtying their hands. They prefer to sit in an office. In this perhaps they are not peculiar, even in Hongkong; but that a Chinese engineering student will not dirty his hands is simply not the fact. Every student in the Engineering Faculty, even those who definitely decide from the first that they aspire to become civil engineers have as a compulsory part of their training to go into University workshop and complete a course of practical training therein. They have also under supervision to handle machines of many different kinds.

That there is still a predilection for civil engineering is not a matter for wonder.

POSITIONS OF TRUST.

The University's civil engineers are to be found filling positions of trust in municipalities in Malaya, on railways and as municipal and Government engineers in China; some are working as architects either in their own firms or as assistants. The head of the P.W.D. Canton is an ex-graduate in Civil Engineering, another built the Sheki Road in Macao, others—who are—in the employment of the Railway Ministry in Nanking have been and still are surveying railways in various parts of China. Until quite recently there were practically no openings either in Hongkong or in China for Chinese mechanical and electrical engineers. The University, moreover, has always recognised that such training as it or any other University can give in the understanding principles and practice of mechanical and electrical engineering, even though that training includes practical work in University workshops and laboratories, is for the purposes of a mechanical or electrical engineer who wishes to make good in the practice of his profession, inadequate, even though such training be supplemented by vacation periods spent in the workshops or dockyards of local firms.

NO TRAINING HERE.

The indispensable apprentice training in industrial factories working under commercial conditions has never been made available in Hongkong. It is the recent decision of British engineering manufacturers to take Hongkong graduates as apprentices and to pay them during their apprenticeships a living wage that has given the University departments of mechanical and electrical engineering their first and only chance. The graduate apprentices have begun well, but will they find reasonable openings in China? This depends largely on the students themselves but there are many elements in the situation over which they will have very little, if any, control.

GIVE THEM A CHANCE.

The Agents in China of the firms with which they were apprenticed must give them a chance. The Chinese parent is conservative—most parents are—but let him once see that University mechanical and electrical graduates are making good and there will be no dearth of those who are students of the best type and anxious to qualify for student apprenticeships.

Two of our engineering graduates, the report states, have

NEW LIST OF PRICES

An Admiralty Fleet Order announces the revised prices for clothing and other articles which can be bought by men in the Navy. These prices are to come into force throughout the world on July 1.

On glancing at the list one is struck by the cheapness of the majority of the articles. In many cases the prices are surprising, and compare favourably with the prices at which Japanese goods have been on sale in this country, and against which there has been so great an outcry.

Striped shirts made in Japan have been on sale in this country at about 3s. 3d. each, while the British article has been priced at 4s. 11d. to 5s. 11d. at the lowest. The price of the equivalent striped shirt in the Admiralty's list is 3s. 2d.

Vests are offered by the Admiralty at 1s. 4d., whereas the average price of the Japanese article is 1s. 6d.

These, however, are a few isolated instances. Even the Admiralty cannot compete with a Japanese complete white suit, with topcoat and shoes, which has been on sale in Java for a mere 6s. the set.

All the same, it would be impossible for private firms in this country to compete with the Admiralty as outfitters. Adding up the prices of the various articles required to turn out a petty officer in "fore and aft" rig—the nearest approach to civilian clothing—we find that the man can be dressed completely for a shade under 50s.

This includes boots, cap, underwear, and even studs, and the uniform is of the ordinary serge as worn in this country.

SAFETY PINS AND BUTTONS.

Practically everything that the sailor needs is available in Admiralty stores. The articles in the price list range from cholera belts to beds and from safety pins at 2d. a tin, and "buttons, black, vegetable ivory, 11-16in." at 2d. a dozen to thick overcoats at 21 6s. 6d.

The stores also cater for the man who does not like buying "off the peg," for prices are included for "made to measure" clothing.

Gold lace badges are the most expensive items in the list.

An officer's cap badge costs only 4d. less than a blue cap and 9d. more than a white cap. A "square rigged" seaman can buy a serge jumper for 5s. 10d., but if he is a leading seaman with two good conduct badges and a first-class gunlayer his gold badges will cost him 6s. 4d.

If he happens to be a qualified diver into the bargain the cost of his badges will be 7s. 4d. 1s. 6d. more than the jumper on which he has to sew them.

One of the most astonishing prices quoted in the list is that for a safety razor which is priced at only 6d.

Tobacco features in the list, and, being free of duty, the prices are eloquent of the enormously high rate of taxation to which civilian smokers are subjected.

The sailor can buy pure leaf and strip tobacco at 1s. 6d. a lb., while a half-pound tin of manufactured pipe tobacco costs him 1s., and 1s. 3d. for cigarette tobacco.

Europe's Future In The Scales?

THE HITLER-MUSSOLINI CONVERSATIONS

CLOSE INTEREST

By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1911. Reprinted June 12, 1934 a.m.)

Rome, June 11.

The importance of the forthcoming meeting between Signor Mussolini and Herr Hitler is emphasised by the preparations now being made for the reception of the German mission.

Much speculation has been provoked and diplomatic quarters are watching events closely.

The results may be vital in the future of Europe and may determine whether Germany's return to Geneva can be negotiated or not.

It is authoritatively learned that Signor Savio, the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Signor Aloisi and Signor Cerulli, the Italian Ambassador in Berlin, are arriving at Venice on Wednesday to prepare for the Hitler-Mussolini conversations.—United Press.

GERMANY'S RETURN TO GENEVA.

London, June 11.

In bringing the making of the Disarmament Conference General Commission to a close at Geneva this afternoon, the Chairman, Mr. Arthur Henderson, expressed the wish that the private conversations with the aim of securing Germany's return would proceed with the least possible delay, otherwise he might have to call a meeting of the Bureau.

Italy and Hungary had intimated that they would join the security committee only as observers as they wished for more universal security than regional pacts made possible.

M. Litvinoff (Russia) reserved the right to raise the question of regional security on continents other than Europe.—British Wireless.

ARMS TRAFFIC

STILL PREVALENT IN COLONY

"There are quite a number of people trafficking in arms in the Colony," stated Inspector Stimson in the Central Police Court this morning when, before Mr. Macfadyen, he prosecuted a farmer, Yip Koon-tai, aged 33, for the possession of 10 rounds of ammunition without a licence from the Hon. I. G. P.

Inspector Stimson stated he had been instructed by the Director of Criminal Intelligence to ask his Worship to take a serious view of the case. Of late there had been one or two robberies in which arms were retrieved by the police.

Defendant was arrested when boarding the Saiwanho launch. The ammunition, all of which was quite serviceable, was found under his hat. He was a fruit dealer and he told the police he had not been to Hongkong for seven or eight years.

The magistrate imposed a fine of $75, or three weeks' hard labour in default.

"PEEPING TOM"

LOOKING INTO AMAHS' BATHROOM

A "peeping Tom" caught in the backyard of No. 22 Johnston Road, was produced before Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistrate's court this morning, on a charge of loitering with intent to commit a felony.

Detective Sergeant Fitches said defendant, Fung Cheung, was arrested by Mr. Souza, the complainant, when he was looking into the amah's bathroom. The amahs in the house had made several complaints that men had been looking into their bathroom while they were taking their baths, and last night Mr. Souza saw the defendant there and arrested him.

Mr. Hamilton pointed out that the charge was loitering with intent to commit a felony, and remanded the case for 48 hours in order that another charge could be put in.

In Search Of Health.

Plenty of fresh air—this is one of the guiding principles in the search for health and one which doctors invariably advocate, for in the air we breathe is contained that most valuable health giving agent oxygen. Oxygen acts in many ways but its essential functions are to purify, enrich and increase the blood, when the blood stream is weakened and depleted, any agent capable of creating rich, new, red blood is doubly welcome, such an agent is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

The formula of this world renowned remedy was discovered by a physician, an M. D. of Edinburgh University, who used it with great success in the treatment of all ailments which had anemia. (Blood impoverishment) as a basic cause. Everywhere the success of this remedy has been acclaimed by people who had been suffering for years from anemia and its allied ailments, neurasthenia, dizziness and weakness, pallor and emaciation, dyspepsia, rheumatism, and women's ailments, and who have found new health and happiness through the oxygenizing action of these pills. To-day, after over fifty years continued proof of their ability to overcome anemia, their popularity is as great as ever. If you are run-down, nervous, lack the power of concentration, are easily tired, have little or no appetite, then try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and let them build up your health, and let them do for you in many similar sufferings. Chemists everywhere sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

THE FIGHT AGAINST TUBERCULOSIS

Tuberculosis, one of the worst scourges to afflict mankind, is being slowly but surely overcome in countries which have set themselves seriously to the task of wiping it out. For twenty years, the National Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis has been labouring in England with this end in view, and it has just reported that the mortality from all forms of this insidious disease has fallen by more than forty per cent. during that period. What is more, the death-rate therefrom last year was the lowest ever recorded. Best of all, final triumph is believed to be possible. Facts like these should encourage health authorities everywhere to redouble their efforts in waging war against the scourge. Here in Hongkong, an average of fully fifty deaths per week is recorded from this disease, and the rate would be higher still but for the fact that sufferers in the last stages of the disease often leave the Colony to die in their native districts. The problem locally is admittedly one of great difficulty. There is no doubting the fact, to which His Excellency the Governor made recent reference, that the question is largely an economic one, with poverty as one of underlying causes. Equally true is the statement made at the same time by Sir William Peel that it is almost impossible to get Oriental tubercular patients to enter sanatoria until the disease is advanced and the chances of recovery are very slight. None the less, the obligation still rests on the Government to do all within its power both to remove the principal contributory causes and to provide adequate measures for the treatment of sufferers. One long overdue step in the latter connection is being taken by the provision of separate wards in hospitals for tubercular patients. But if any real impression is to be made on the prevalence of the disease locally and if the terribly high mortality rate is to be reduced, far more comprehensive measures will need to be taken. Standards of living will have to be raised, much more intensive hygienic propaganda will have to be undertaken, and, despite the reluctance of sufferers to undergo treatment, provision will have to be made for the one or more establishments devoted wholly to combating the disease. Experience in England has shown that people have to be educated up to the desirability of early treatment, and the process is inevitably a slow one. Yet by steady, unremitting application it has been found possible to instil right ideas into the minds

NOTES OF THE DAY

EX-KAISER INTERVIEW

Mr. Randolph Churchill's interview at Doorn produced an expression of views upon world politics generally that was so much in harmony at all points with the known policy of the Daily Mail that the critical reader might be forgiven for wondering how much of it was the ex-Kaiser's and how much the Daily Mail's. Not that the answer is very material or important. Too many subjects were touched upon in a short interview to permit of a reasoned argument in justification of any of the assertions made or opinions expressed. The lack of logic reveals itself most clearly in the reference to the decline of democracy in Europe. Since measures are required everywhere, the ex-Kaiser is quoted as saying, to combat the perils of "anarchism and bolshevism," which, again, doubtless fits in with the Daily Mail's encouragement of Mosleyism in Britain. In short, it is not the decline of democracy that calls for remark but such activities within democracy that are directed towards fuller expression of the ideal of government by the people for the people—calling for stern measures of suppression.

NEW WAY OF THINKING

Criticism of the ex-Kaiser's opinions that pursues the path suggested above would doubtless be characterised in some quarters as outrageously radical. In actual fact, it is mild comment in the topsy-turvy world of to-day. For instance, what can be the reaction of the ordinary man whose interest in politics is negligible, to a stock market expert's review of Washington developments that "implies in the programme of social legislation for the next year indicate a policy of the maintenance of the capitalist system." The phrase, contained in Swan, Culbertson and Fritz's report from Washington yesterday, was not submitted as a matter for congratulation. The reader feels that had the Roosevelt trend been different, the fact would have been recorded in the same matter-of-fact fashion, as nothing warranting excitement or alarm. As expressed, it is startlingly significant commentary upon a new way of thinking in the world to-day.

MOSLEY BULLIES

Britain will not put up with much more hanky-panky from the Mosleyites. Sir John Gilmour, the Home Secretary, might have expressed himself a little more clearly, but, reduced to simple terms, his statement of policy gave assurance that the bullying tactics of the Black Shirts will not be tolerated. If Sir Oswald Mosley calls a public meeting and fails to gain a hearing, he must put up with it. Even if the interlopers exceed ordinary bounds, it is not within the competence of a private organisation to take the law into its own hands and employ hired bullies and violence to suppress the outbreak. Ten persons were treated in hospital after adventures within the building at Olympia. It speaks for itself.

MODERN LATIN

Always enamoured of Latin, educated circles in England are digesting with interest the new crop of "modern Latin" words put out by the "Societas Latins" of Munich, the society of scholars founded not long ago to keep that ancient tongue alive for modern international use. The new crop included: Crossword puzzles (crucigramma), Bobbed hair (comptus puerilis), Lipstick (atilus fucana), London Editorial (caput primarium), Skiing (solen nivalis), Bills of exchange (syngrapha). The Society's review contains articles by technicians suggesting words and phrases which will keep Latin abreast of the times in all the sciences and a useful medium for international conversations. All this is quite in the English key, where the teaching of Latin is, in many schools, highly modern. English schoolboys, aged ten, are now busy translating into Latin, "Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Wolf." Boys of the Westminster School give each year an original play in Latin which contains so many amusing jokes and bits of modern slang that The Times prints it in full for the benefit of readers. "Crucigramma" is now a "household word" in thousands of British homes.

of the people, and this, together with the spread of hygienic ideas, has greatly helped in gaining master over the dread disease. Admittedly, conditions in the East are not those which prevail in England, but the same basic methods of prevention and cure apply in the one case as in the other.

WILL CUBA GO RED OR REMAIN BLUE?

By A. EDDY

CONTRARY to the belief that Cuba's troubles are purely political, the land of Columbus has simply succumbed to the same economic disaster which was responsible for laying low rubber-producing Malaya, coffee-producing Egypt and grain-producing Argentina.

At the time of the writer's first visit to Cuba, not long after the war, sugar was selling at 25 cents U.S.G. per pound and no bootblack on the streets in Havana would give you a shoeshine for less than 25 cents; labourers cutting sugar cane could be seen wearing expensive silk shirts, and there were no rooms in any decent hotel for less than $15 U.S.G. per day without meals. When sugar subsequently reached the 28 cents figure, American sugar interests offered to take over the entire sugar production of Cuba at 25 cents a pound, but the Cubans wouldn't accept less than 30 cents. It was during those years of frenzy that sumptuous marble palaces and luxurious hotels were constructed and public works of national importance instituted. Notwithstanding the fact that between 1920 and 1930 Havana was the most expensive city in the world, in 1929 over 120,000 American tourists visited "the most beautiful land human eyes have ever seen" to quote Columbus, the tourist industry thus supplanting tobacco and becoming the largest source of national revenue after sugar.

United States duty on Cuban sugar, plus world market conditions, has sent the price of this product from 28 cents to less than one cent a pound at which figure it was selling in 1933. When the writer visited Cuba for the second time, if we take into consideration that Cuba is the largest sugar-producing country in the world (four million tons a year followed by Java with two millions), it will be readily realized what the summation of a contract at 25 cents a pound would have meant for Cuba in addition to the probability of keeping away the U.S. tax on her sugar which is one of the principal causes of the present plight of Cuba on one hand and of the prosperity of the Philippine sugar growers on the other. (Incidentally it is an indication of what may happen to the Philippine sugar industry once those islands gain complete independence).

Complete Stagnation

In spite of the superhuman efforts of Dr. Tirso Mesa, then Mayor of Havana, and the head of the Cuban National Tourist Commission, to increase the national revenue by attracting more American tourists, only 38,000 thrifty Americans responded to the call of cold beer in 1931 staying for an average of two and a half days as against eight days in 1929 and spending less than one tenth of the average amount left behind by tourists in 1929. Hotel rooms were selling from $1.50 up, labourers cutting sugar cane were working without wages, for food only, and there were no more bootblacks left on the streets of Havana. By 1932, the greater portion of sugar cane was left standing in the fields and two-thirds of the hotels had closed down, which fact, incidentally, is responsible for my writing these lines to-day in Hongkong. On top of all this came Repeal in America making it unnecessary for the thousands of merry-makers in Florida to go over to Havana to quench their thirst, and the recent revolutions succeeded in completely scaring away even the few remaining tourist boats scheduled to call at Cuban ports in 1933.

At the time of his inauguration in office, which coincided with the crest of the prosperity wave in Cuba, General Machado, with a distinguished record in the War of Independence against Spain, and who through the sheer force of his personality from a clerk in a country sugar mill became the President of Cuba, was the most popular man in his country. However, as the economic situation became worse and worse, he had to face severe criticism on account of maintaining a costly army and also for constructing expensive public works like the Central Highway (700 miles long, traversing the entire length of Cuba without a single level crossing and costing 200 million dollars gold) and the Capital (the nearest rival of Taj Mahal and costing 20 million dollars gold) and the Machado Model Village and Industrial School, which are undoubtedly the most outstanding achievements during the 36 years of national life of Cuba. Had Machado retired at the end of his first term, he would have gone down in history as one of the greatest Presidents of Cuba. However, by arbitrarily changing the Constitution and by appointing himself for a second term against the will of the entire nation (when he pronounced the historical phrase: "I cannot be ousted with scraps of paper" (ballot), he became the object of the greatest national hatred and the senecaport for the catastrophe of Cuba.

A Broken Spring

And there is Cuba to-day, prostrated like a mechanism with a broken spring, and Havana, once the Paris of the tropics and the gayest and most luxurious city in America, deserted by natives and tourists alike. Gone are the days when Havana was the cleanest city in the world, without flies and mosquitoes. Every second building in the centre of the town is now to let or for sale, and the Municipality has other things to worry about besides keeping alive such an expensive sanitary department. Her tourist trade is finished for the time being, and the few remaining hotels open for business, are empty. Her luxurious Casino, more sumptuous than that of Monte Carlo, and her racetrack, one of the most beautifully laid out tropical tracks in the world, and at one time patronized by more millionaires than any other, with the possible exception of Aguascalientes on the Mexican border, have been closed for over two years, and her commerce has shrunk to less than one-fourth in four years.

There are three roads to salvation (1) a war which would increase the price of sugar, (2) a custom union with the United States, and (3) settling down to adjust the national life to the new circumstances. The third alternative is the most difficult one to face, and at present Cuba is drifting on the high seas of world depression, aggravated by revolutionary struggles for power.

Revolutions in Latin America are usually directed against per-

The Very Idea!

JEEJEEBOY GOES ON

By George

"THE Golden Candareen", by the author of previous instalment.

(N.B. Readers who failed to cudge a paper of yesterday's issue and thus missed the opening of our hire-purchase serial should buy one now at the office as we can't keep reproducing the same bit every day—besides the author might still be here. However, for the benefit of the above readers we are repeating our last paragraph.)

"But it is with the son of the chairman of directors that we are concerned. Pale and delicate, noble and beautiful in character and features, Reginald Hippocle de Jeejeeboy of the P.W.D. was, despite his name, every inch a man."

(What is Jeejeeboy going to do in this second instalment of a thrilling narrative? Goodness knows he didn't do much yesterday but then what could you do in half a column? Ask your friend this question and send us the replies to-morrow. If we don't use them remember we're running this serial, not you. Now read on.)

every other inch a man.

What more natural than that he should fall in love with Madge whose coarser and more manly features appealed to his sense of humour?

Even now she was awaiting his coming, impatiently puffing great clouds of smoke from the Isla de Perfectos cheroot which she had retrieved from wherever she threw it in the first instalment of a thrilling narrative.

Brushing a hand across her stubbly chin she gazed moodily through the Penk into the near future. What she saw afforded her little satisfaction apparently for suddenly she grunted loudly and spat over the verandah thereby causing the amah to prick herself severely with her chopsticks.

It might almost be said of Madge that she was every inch a man too.

Hitching up her trousers—she had spent the day shopping and was still in her rough attire—she passed her other hand across the same chin and scowling savagely bent down to enter the bungalow and make herself presentable against Jeejeeboy's arrival.

Meanwhile Reginald, clad in a beautiful gown of diaphanous material, was strolling along the Praya whistling softly to the fish as they came to the surface to take an occasional breath. Now and then he took a little make-up box from his intimate pocket and had a peep at himself.

(To be continued. Don't cease to buy the Telegraph, folks! We haven't near finished yet. What will Reginald do when he sees himself in the mirror? What would you do? That is the human problem that will keep us up to-night slapping out another column of literary hogswash until we can bring Madge and Reg face to face. What a meeting! See to-morrow's semi-final instalment.)

CATS' LESSON.

You big Tom Cat! What alls you that, each quiet night, becomes affright, before your walls? What dreadful emotion causes commotion as the moon pales?

Don't tell us that you've caught a rat! Such innocent joy, you daily do play, without acrimony; some new element, has found a frow vent, in dreadful harmony!

But though our sleep is broken, so's yours. The same token, is good for us both. And perhaps the pleasure, in which you spend your leisure, might not find us loth!

So stick to your tiles; we have different styles, that's all there is to it. But take some advice, though courting is nice, don't overdo it!

Just watch your carriage, or you'll have a mis-marriage. By George how we know it. But then you can't hear us, you big ignoramus, we might as well stow it.

"How old do you think she really is?"

Kuramoto Affair Threatens to Become an Incident

POLICE WITHOUT A CLUE

BAFFLING MYSTERY

Shanghai, June 12.

With the despatch of three Japanese warships to Nanking, the Kuramoto Disappearance appears to be taking on a more serious complexion.

It is freely alleged, in some of the Chinese newspapers that an incident is being created by the Japanese with ulterior motives.

The Japanese destroyer Ashi left Shanghai for Nanking yesterday, apparently in connection with the Kuramoto affair, while the cruiser Tsushima is scheduled to sail for the capital to-day.

It is also reported that the cruiser Idzumo is now on her way from Hankow to Nanking.—Reuter.

CHINESE COMMENT ON THE RIDDLE OF A CROWDED THOROUGHFARE

Nanking, June 12.

The disappearance of Mr. Kuramoto, Japanese vice-consul at Nanking, remains a complete mystery.

Up to late last night, despite the continued vigorous search conducted by the local police and gendarmes, not a trace had been found.

A high official of the Chinese Government, in refuting a suggestion circulated by a Japanese news agency alleging that Mr. Kuramoto was kidnapped and murdered by an unknown gang, declared that it was pure imagination, and unconvincing, since worked up to the highest pitch, no Japanese life in Nanking was endangered.

SAILORS MAY BE LANDED.

Meanwhile, a sensational report has been circulated in official circles to the effect that a Japanese cruiser is threatening to land a party of blue-jackets to "help" the Chinese authorities to carry out the search for the Japanese diplomat.—Central News.

LEGATION STATEMENT.

TWO MEN CHARGED AT MAGISTRACY

The chase in the harbour yesterday, when two alleged opium smugglers were arrested, had a sequel before Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy this morning, when Li Ho, a sailor on the motor launch Sing Chau, and Ho Kam-fuk, a boatman, were charged with possession of 3,120 taels of raw opium and 60 tins of prepared opium.

Mr. M. A. da Silva appeared for both defendants, and pleaded not guilty to the charges.

Hearing of the case was fixed for Monday next at 11.30 a.m. Defendants were granted bail in $10,000 each.

FASCIST RIOT AT OLYMPIA

VIOLENCE BY STEWARDS

London, June 11.

The disorders at a Fascist meeting at Olympia last week were the subject of a statement in the House of Commons by the Home Secretary.

Sir John Gilmour said the country as a whole would agree that disorder on the scale recently witnessed could not be tolerated and, if it continued, it might be necessary to arm the executive authorities with further powers for the purpose of preserving public order.

He was not concerned to apportion the blame between the Fascists and the Communists, but it was the function of the Government to preserve law and order and they would be failing in their duty if they allowed any faction to disturb the public peace.

They were certainly not prepared to allow the maintenance of order and the maintenance of free institutions to be usurped by any private or irresponsible body, no matter what might be the avowed aim or object.

TEN BADLY HURT.

The statement was made in reply to a number of questions addressed to the Minister.

He stated that, arising out of the disturbances in connection with the meeting, 23 arrests were made and ten persons were treated in neighbouring hospitals for injuries believed to have been sustained within the building.

He explained that, except on request, or unless there was good reason to believe a breach of peace was being committed, it was no part of the Police duty to enter premises where public meetings were being held.

On the present occasion, the Police were informed that assistance within the building was not required.

RESPONSIBLE EVIDENCE.

Allegations have been made by responsible eye-witnesses that assaults were committed by the Fascist stewards on people interrupting, but as the law did not allow undue violence to be used and as the question used might be necessary force was used might come before the court it would not be proper for him to make any comment on these allegations.

He ought, however, to point out that hitherto advice as regards Police action had been based on the assumption that stewards would act without undue violence and would avoid illegal acts. If this assumption was found unwarranted as regards meetings promoted by any particular organisation, the whole policy of Police action inside such public meeting would have to be revised.—British Wireless.

PROFESSOR ON THE DEFENSIVE

DR. TUGWELL'S IDEAS ON SOCIAL ORDER

Washington, June 11.

Professor Rexford Tugwell, arch-revolutionary schemer according to the discredited Professor Wirt, Bad Boy of the New Deal according to America's ultra-conservatives, and a negligible quantity in the formulation of Administration policy according to himself, had a gruelling time to-day.

Appearing before the Agricultural Committee of the Senate, Professor Tugwell said that the Constitution was flexible enough for any changes that might take place in America's economic life. He denied that he was in favour of sweeping revolutionary changes in the Government.

His ideas on government were attacked from all angles, but he gave little away. The Committee appeared to be making an effort to show that Professor Tugwell is unfit for promotion to the position of Under-Secretary of Agriculture, because he is not a dirt farmer, not a practical man.

THE U.S. TRADITION.

Professor Tugwell, in an interview with the United Press said he was convinced that the New Deal is saving rather than destroying American tradition.

Dr. Tugwell believes that President Roosevelt came into power at the low point of American history and thinks the country might have gone to any extreme a year ago.

He remarked that no one knows the direction in which the United States would have gone without some Rooseveltian first aid. In one direction lay Fascism and in the other Communism. He didn't mention any names. He spoke of directions. But he felt that President Roosevelt had saved the characteristically American tradition.

ECONOMIC FORUM.

Protesting that "it doesn't make any difference what I think," Dr. Tugwell talked of the New Deal but shied away from mention of Dr. William A. Wirt, publicist of the Brain Trust "red plot."

Asked about regimentation and control of industry, he replied: "I don't believe in that at all." His conception of NRA is that of an "economic forum" in which differences among and within industries may be thought out and solved.

The real difficulty in the United States, he said, is maladjustment of the price system. Since the war the dislocations in relations between various prices have interrupted the exchange of commodities. And to that interruption must be ascribed unemployment and many major ills.

NON-CO-OPERATION.

The objective desired by Dr. Tugwell is a continuity of industry by which he means ample and stable employment and the maintenance of a relationship between prices of all commodities which will enable industries to exist and perhaps enable all the people to prosper.

One thing puzzles the professor more than any other. He cannot understand the non-co-operative spirit recently manifest in industry's relationship with the New Deal.

It is strange, he mused, that industrialists are not willing to give up a little to gain much. And there lies the root of dispute between Prof. Tugwell and those who see in him red revolution. The professor is convinced that many forces now allied against the administration stand to gain rather than to lose from Mr. Roosevelt's programme.

PERSONAL LAMENT.

His personal lament is that his influence with the administration is over-estimated by almost everyone. He is enjoying himself in Washington but will not be sorry to return to his professor's chair at Columbia University. He conceives himself to be a champion of democracy; and is convinced that reform or recovery or whatever it is, in the United States, has only begun.—United Press.

JUNK ATTACK SEQUEL

MALICIOUS WOUNDING CHARGE

A report this morning that the two men held in connection with the attack on a junk anchored at Taihu Chau, and in which a fisherman, Fan Yan, was wounded by gun shot, had been released, is discounted by the fact that they were charged before Mr. MacDougall in the District Office South this morning.

The accused, Hung So, and his son, Hung Yau, were charged with malicious wounding. Detective-Inspector Rozensky appeared for the prosecution, while Mr. C. Y. Kwan was for the defence.

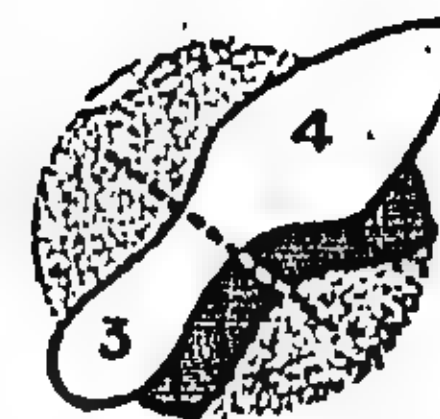

A medical report stated that Fan Yan would not be discharged from hospital until June 26. The accused were formally remanded for seven days.

AUSTRALIA'S CHANCE OF WINNING TEST MATCH

QUICK RUNS NEEDED BEFORE LUNCH

ENGLAND WITH BACK TO THE WALL

GEARY AND HENDREN SAVE SIDE FROM UTTER COLLAPSE

WERE the first Test a play-to-a-finish match, England could regard herself as being in a highly precarious position. Australia finishing the day 205 runs ahead with seven wickets in hand.

AS it is, Australia have a chance of effecting a win, but it will require some skilful captaincy on the part of Woodfull, backed by the best efforts of his colleagues. The Australians, themselves immune from defeat, are now up against the clock. England as a team of cricketers means practically nothing to them.

WOODFULL'S problem is for the Australians to score a few more runs themselves and then dismiss England, all within the space of about six and a half playing hours.

ON the face of it a drawn game appears to be a fairly safe bet.

BUT the Australians are in this sound strategic position. They can afford to call the tune, knowing full well that under no circumstances will they have to pay the piper.

THE visitors' chief means of obtaining a win appears to be to obtain 100 odd quick runs before the lunch adjournment, thereby setting England the task of scoring the best part of 400 runs to win. After that they will have to rely on their bowlers, plus the possible assistance of a wicket wearing under the strain of four days play.

THE hope of success seems to be rather slender, for without entirely ignoring the first innings failures of the English batsmen, they still remain powerfully potential run-getters.

A GREAT deal depends on the state of the wicket. Few English cricketers stand up to four days play without some signs of breaking up towards the end, and although apparently the weather has been very generous at Nottingham, it is more than likely that half an hour after the wicket has been rolled out following the Australians' second knock, that it will begin to cut up badly.

AND if Grimmett and O'Reilly get going under such conditions, England will have to fight very hard to avoid defeat.

ENGLAND'S inconsistent batting yesterday was a big disappointment to Home-Siders. Two players literally saved the team from collapse and probably the follow-on.

PATSY Hendren, who is showing a fine disregard for the undoubted efficiency of the Australian bowlers, having previously helped himself to two centuries at their expense, again batted magnificently, and with Geary, upon whose 53 it would be difficult to place a true value, pulled England out of the fire.

PRIOR to their association, England had lost six wickets for 165 runs and stood in direct danger of following on. Then came a pre-lunch stand between Hendren and Geary which carried the total to 240, while after the wicket was rolled out Hendren fell a victim to O'Reilly.

ENGLAND'S "tail", the standing jokes of 1921, 1924-5, and 1926, returned in all its old-time glory, adjournment a further 26 runs

Four wickets fell for an additional two runs. Grimmett and O'Reilly, good bowlers though they are, were flattered.

GRIMMETT can still make English batsmen nervous as kittens. Just look at his figures: 38-3 overs, 24 maidens, 81 runs, 5 wickets. O'Reilly, aided by that last collapse also returned useful figures.

YES! They may prove to be very destructive to-day on that wicket.

THE early dismissal of Woodfull and Ponsford in their second innings which started after tea, meant only one thing. Australia were out for quick runs. The quicker the better. It was left to Stanley McCabe to score them.

BROWN, somewhat horrified to see Australia's two staunchest batsmen dismissed for seven runs between them, refused to play with fire, which was the reason why close of play found him 37 not out, while Bradman had come and gone for 25 and McCabe had collected 74.

DON Bradman failed again. That is judging by his own contribution of 25. But when it is appreciated that he obtained those out of 37 runs, it will be seen his innings was quite valuable, paving the way as it did for more glorious hitting by McCabe.

McCABE was positively disdainful in his treatment of Farnes, Hammond, Geary, Verity, Mitchell and Leyland. To hit a six and thirteen boundaries in the course of an hour and 26 minutes batting towards the end of a day is a trifle Jessopian. So far as the English attack was concerned, it was also very disconcerting.

ENGLAND may derive some encouragement from the fact that once before at Trent Bridge they were led on the first innings, but won the match. The only difference being on—that occasion—their made 426 for five declared in their second innings on the third day's play and not the last. It was in 1905.

THE unevenness of England's batting yesterday can be gauged by the fact that three batsmen between them scored 194 of the 268 runs. The remaining batsmen contributed 69 runs, an average of nearly 10 runs each.

Yesterday's Test Play Described

McCABE'S SPARKLING BATTING IN LAST HOUR AND HALF

Nottingham, June 11. Sunny weather favoured the opening of the third day's play in the First Test match at Trent Bridge when the English side resumed their innings this morning.

The wicket was in good condition and there were approximately 20,000 spectators present when the Nawab of Patkote, who had scored six runs on Saturday, and "Patsy" Hendren, who had made ten, returned to the wickets to face the Australian attack with the total standing at 123 for four wickets.

The brilliant young Indian player was the first to leave when he had taken his individual score to twelve. The total was then 135 and, in attempting to play a delivery from Wall, the South Australian fast bowler, he was caught at second slip by McCabe.

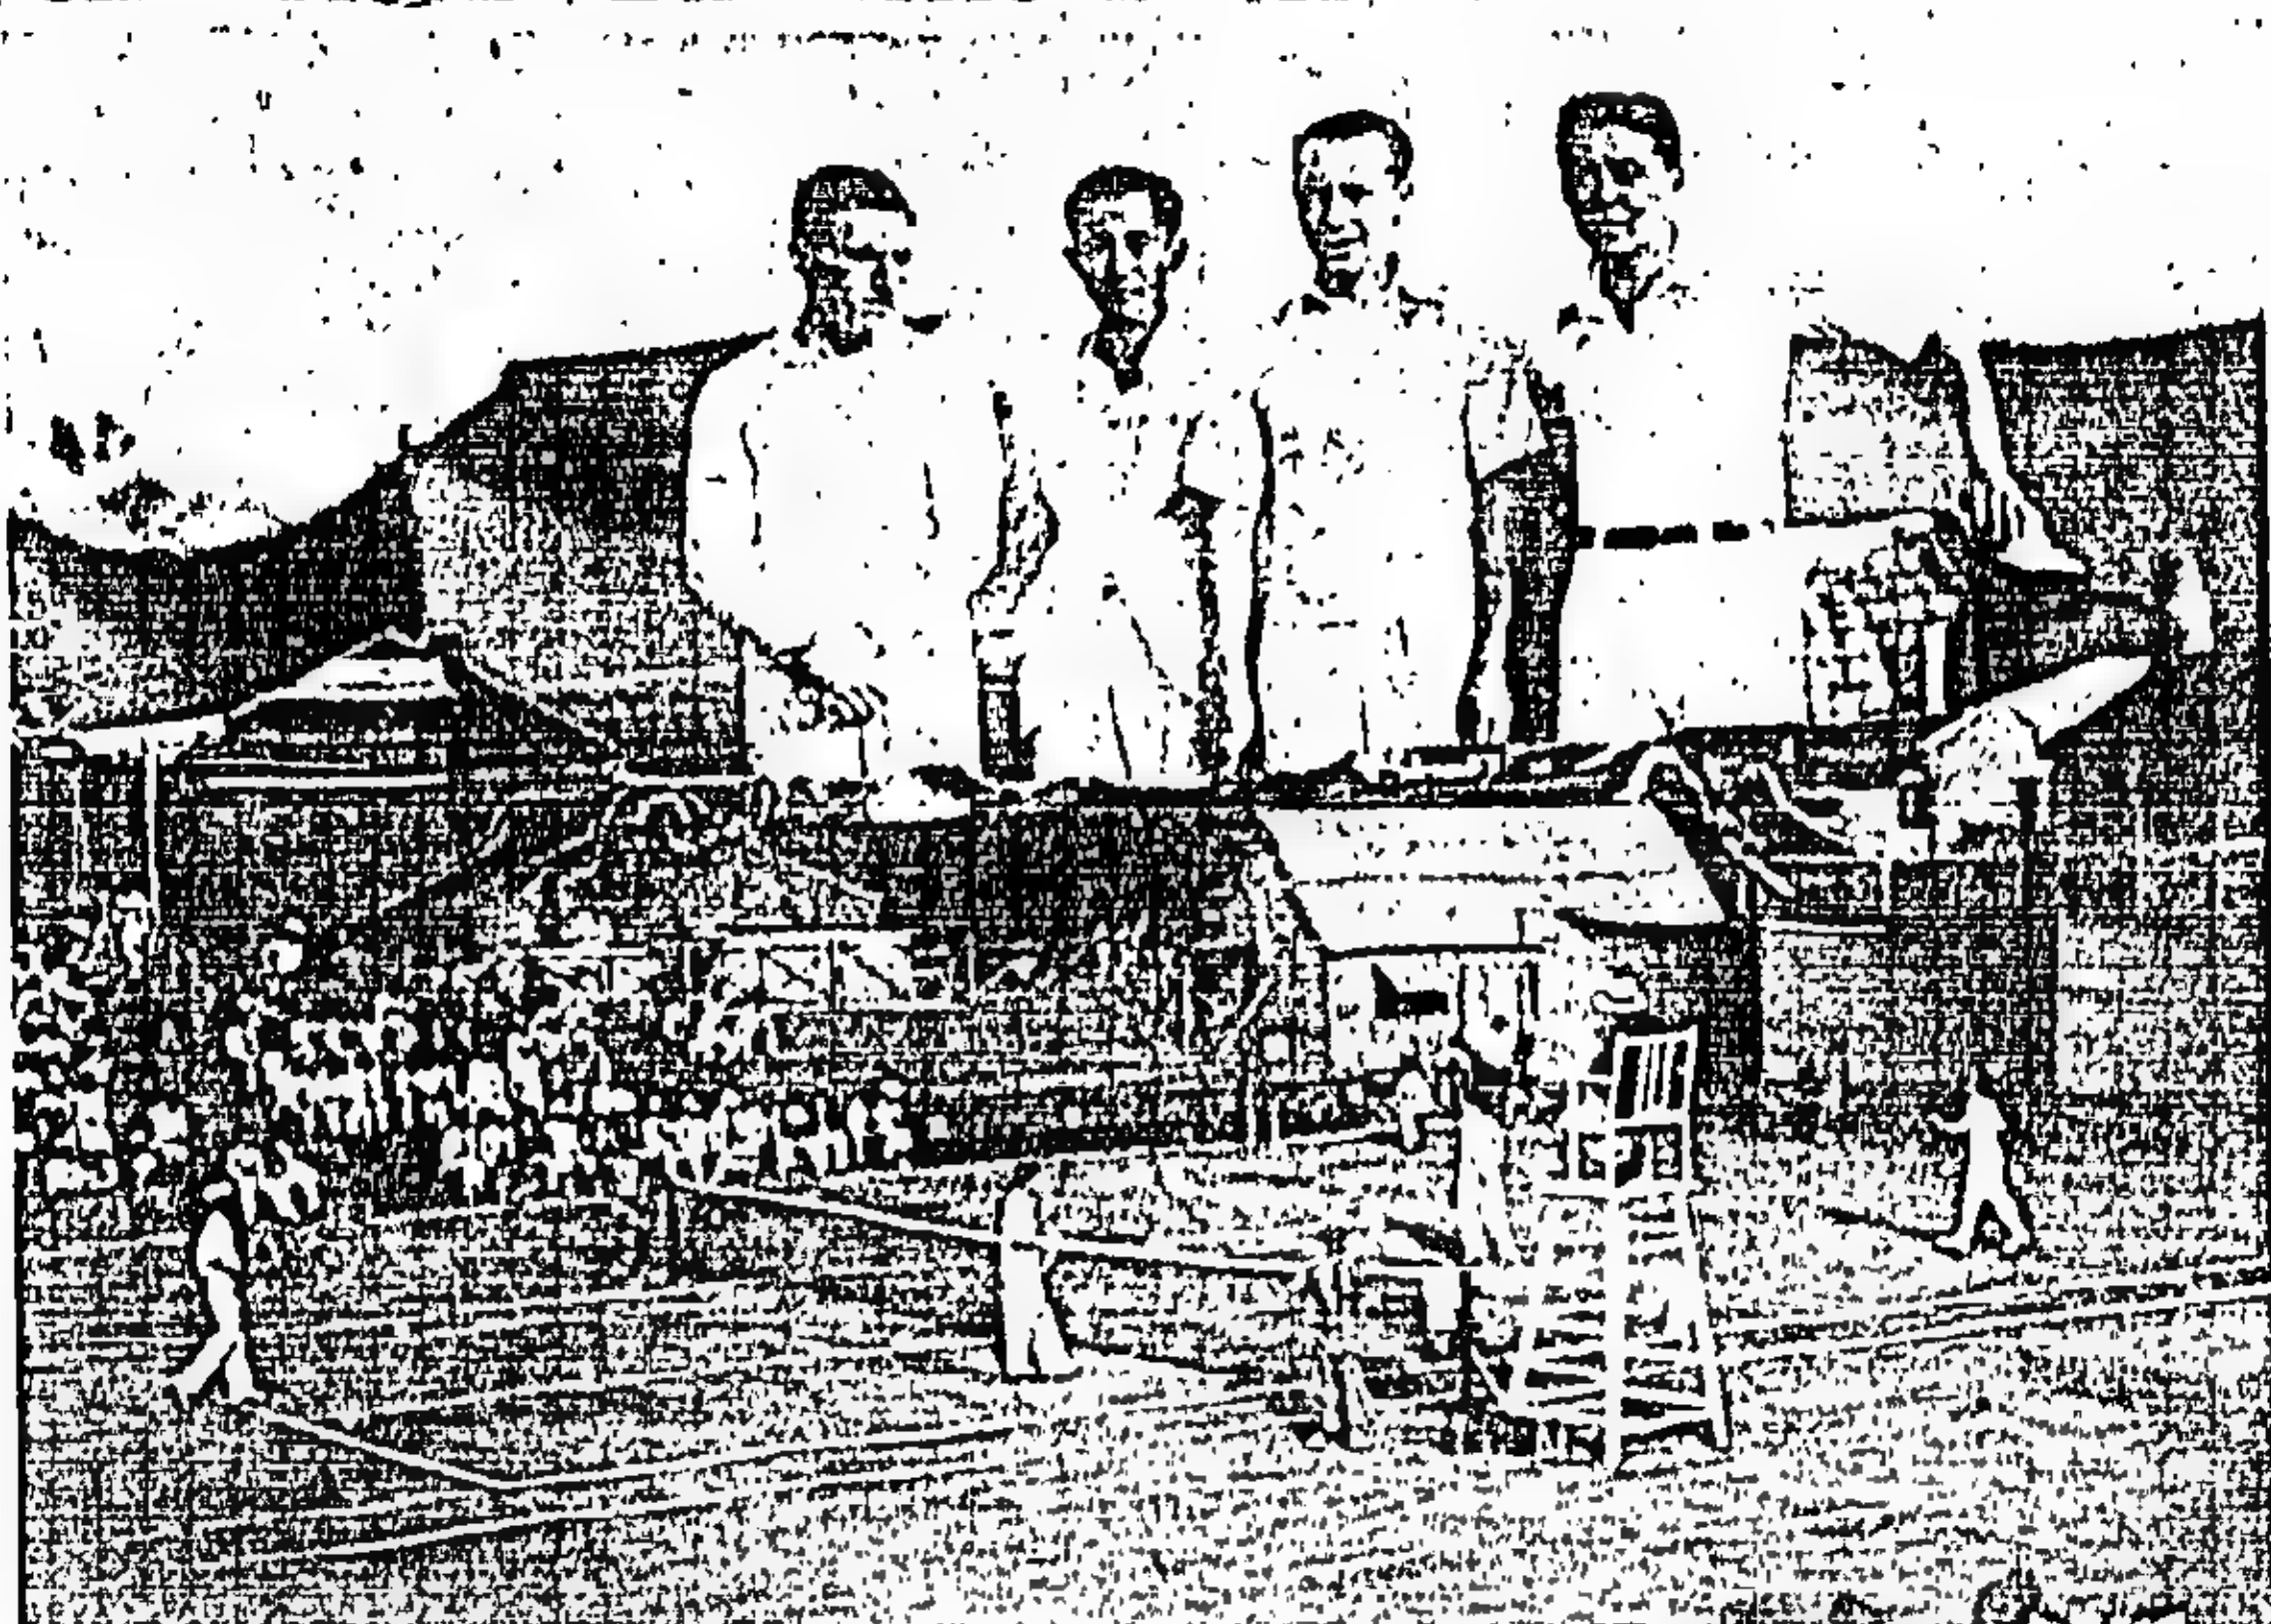

The batsman had fallen into a trap set by the bowler. The Nawab just nicked the ball which flew to McCabe, who, however, failed to hold it the first time and caught it only at a second attempt, 145-6-12.

England's wicket-keeper, Leslie Ames, joined the Middlesex player at the wicket but ten runs later the Kent representative was dismissed by Wall when the batsman asked a delivery from O'Reilly to square leg, 165-6-10.

A VALUABLE STAND.

George Geary, the Leicestershire bowler, filled the vacancy and he and Hendren made a gallant attempt to retrieve what was threatening to develop into a disastrous situation for England. The pair played the bowling with more confidence than any of the previous batsmen and took the

ENGLAND'S DAVIS CUP POSSIBILITIES

NO PRACTICAL REASON WHY TROPHY SHOULD NOT BE RETAINED

At the close of the Hard Court Championships at Bournemouth, which on the men's side have provided some exciting battles between the representatives of England, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, France, and Japan, an appropriate moment has been reached for some comments on the Davis Cup outlook for 1934 writes Sir F. Gordon Lusk.

As all the world knows, our Davis Cup team, Perry, Austin, Hughes, and Lee, brought the coveted cup back to these shores last July after an absence of 21 years, and are now able to sit back in comfort and prepare for the challenge round, while other nations will be battling throughout the season in the preliminary competitions.

Britain's chance of holding what she so nobly won in 1933 seems to improve with each successive week.

Everything, of course, depends on whether Perry and Austin can be brought to the post fit and well, and not overplayed.

Perry is in the pink of condition and just in the mood for a hard season's play, as he showed at Bournemouth by shouldering the full responsibility for us in the absence of Austin and Hughes. The confidence of Perry and Hughes in themselves as a pair has been considerably increased since they carried off the Australian doubles; this feat, by the way, pleased Perry far more than his success in the singles.

With this year's challenge round being staged over the week-end, there should be no question of Roper Barrett having to rest Perry in the doubles. With Sunday coming in between he cannot have three consecutive days' play.

Our Davis Cup reserve, Harold Lee, appeared stale at Bournemouth when he went down easily to that testing player, Avery. I hear that Lee, through business reasons, may not be seen in the courts so much this season.

PRAISE FOR HARE.

With the brilliant exception of young Hare, our second line of defence was disappointing. There can be nothing but praise for Hare, although in the end he fell too easily to boy McGrath. By his defeat of Merin, France's young Davis Cup hope, Hare did more than enough to show his promise.

He has all the attributes of a future champion—a fine temperament, first-class strokes, coupled with a destructive service, and the ability to "scramble." This latter quality means getting the ball back somehow in a tight corner.

It looks as if either Australia or America would be our eventual Davis Cup challengers. The Australian team opened their campaign at Bournemouth strongly, in spite

C. E. Hare, this season's most famous English tennis player, who is regarded by many competent critics as a natural successor to Fred Perry. Here he is seen in action against J. F. G. Lyngby, former Oxford Blue.

KENT'S SAD CRICKET FESTIVAL

AT TONBRIDGE

LANCS: OUTPLAY WORCESTER

London, June 11. The Tonbridge cricket festival opened badly for Kent, who to-day suffered their severest defeat of the season at the hands of Warwickshire, who collected the maximum points by an innings and 126 runs.

Warwick laid the foundation of their success on Saturday, when they hit up 435 by means of attractive batting in which most of the team figured prominently, and wound up the day's play by capturing two of Kent's wickets for 10 runs.

They continued the slaughter to-day, sending the home county back for 140.

Mayer, who has enjoyed previous success on the Angel Ground, was again in the lime-light, taking half the wickets for 67 runs.

Following on, Kent did little better, this time being tied down by Payne, who, by coincidence, obtained his first hat-trick in county cricket against Warwick at Tonbridge Wells some six years ago.

Payne proved extremely difficult to play, and his final figures of 3 for 39 were chiefly responsible for Kent's dismissal for 169.

WORCESTER ALSO.

Worcester, playing against Lancashire, suffered a similar fate as Kent, being beaten by an innings and 192.

Lancashire made light of the task of scoring, and were able to declare at 466 for 6. Watson scored another century, his figure being 148, while Payne, whose absence from the Test team has been the cause of considerable comment, lauded the selectors by scoring 100 not out.

Watson, not content with his batting achievement, also demonstrated his ability as a trundler, and in Worcester's first knock, which realised 149, captured 5 for 57.

Following on, the Potterymen were sent back for 115.

TO BE GIVEN GRANTS

BORDERERS AND ST. JOSEPH'S

The Hongkong Football Association Council at the monthly meeting held last evening reconsidered a decision made previously in connection with the division of the gate receipts taken in the match between the South Wales Borderers and St. Joseph's Football Club in the play-off for the championship.

The meeting, which was presided over by Mr. C. M. Manners, granted the two clubs concerned twenty-five per cent. of the net receipts. At the last Council meeting the request for part of the gate receipts was refused by the Council.

The annual general meeting of the Hongkong Football Association is to be held on Thursday, July 12 at 6.30 p.m. at the Sports Club if the Association can obtain the necessary permission from the Club's committee.

The Council, in considering the accounts for the year, granted the Secretary, Mr. G. T. May, the usual honorarium of $500.

RECORDS LIKELY TO GO

THREAT TO ENGLISH ATHLETES

England is likely to have strong opposition from the South Africans in the British Empire Championships at the London White City in August, writes Joe Binks, former mile champion.

At the South African championships, held in Queenstown, some splendid performances were seen. As usual, a brilliant sprinter, who can beat "evens" was strongly in evidence.

M. W. Theunissen, who comes from Natal, is a fine, strongly-built sprinter. He won the 100 yards in 9.4-sec, and the 220 yards in 21.8-sec.

Judging by the picture of the 100 yards finish, Theunissen runs with his head thrown back, after the style of Eric Liddell.

However, my friend, S. Hellen, the starter—to whom I am indebted for the programme and other items—tells me this new sprinter is "class" in every way, and some think he will beat the British record if given a fine day and a good track.

One thing is certain. Our champion, G. T. Saunders, should give the South African a fiercer much to think about over 100 yards.

By the way, D. J. Joubert, who has won the last four years, and holds the South African record at 9.6-10 sec, was beaten into third place.

BRILLIANT HURDLER.

J. H. Viljoen won both the 220 and 220 yards hurdles brilliantly, showing 16sec and 25sec respectively. He also added the long jump at 23ft 6½in.

The wonderful all-round talent, Harry Hart, held his own in the hammer throw (123ft 3in) shot put (50.8), and discus (133.6). Yet, with such a great throw as 176ft 7½in, he was only third in the javelin.

Hart and Viljoen will again be the stalwarts for the South African team.

J. Luckoff threw the javelin 188ft 10½in, and must be very useful.

Among the women athletes Marjorie Clark is still supreme, and she is to come to England again. This splendid athlete won the 100 yards hurdles in 13.8-sec, the high jump at 4ft 10in, and was second in both the discus and shot put finals.

In 16-year-old Miss R. Burke South Africa has found a brilliant sprinter. She won her heat in 11.3-10sec, and the final in 11.2-10sec—both South African records.

Miss Burke has not been extended so far, and is evidently going to take a lot of beating at the White City.

All our leading Scottish, Welsh, and English athletes are now in strict training, and great care must be exercised.

STRENUOUS SEASON.

With the intervening County Championships, International matches, and the A.A.A. Championships, our athletes realise that the period will be strenuous before the Empire Games start on Aug. 3.

However, the prospects are bright concerning such as G. H. Saunders, E. I. Davis, F. F. Wolf, D. L. Rathbone, G. L. Rampling, J. V. Powell, C. Whitehead, T. H. Scrimshaw, R. H. Thomas, J. E. Lovelock, D. O. Finlay, R. St. G. Harper, F. R. Webster, J. T. Holden, D. McNab Robertson, Dunkie Wright, R. R. Sutherland, E. Harper, and Vic Harman, to mention only a few of our "stars."

Every athlete who has the semblance of a chance of getting into the English team will want all the scratch-racing experience he can get.

WELL-KNOWN AMATEUR FOOTBALL CLUB IN UNUSUAL AFFAIR

SWISS TOUR BROUGHT TO ABRUPT END

ENGLISH F. A. TAKING UP MATTER

The Oxford City F. C. Swiss tour, organised as usual by Mr. J. R. Benson, was marred by a most unfortunate incident unprecedented in the history of these ventures.

The first match was against Kreuzlingen and was played in the evening in floodlight, the kick-off being at 8.15. The City players were entirely unfamiliar with the conditions under which this game was played. They failed to do themselves justice and were well beaten by seven goals to two.

Apparently this defeat seems to have convinced the manager of the Kreuzlingen Club that the City team was not up to the standard he had been led to believe and things began to move.

However, the City played a second match against Lusternau (Austria) and were again beaten by 2-1.

MR. BENSON'S STATEMENT.

What subsequently happened is best described in an interview with Mr. J. R. Benson, who said: "It was the automatic attitude of the manager of the Kreuzlingen Football Club. The Swiss Football Association was not aware of any complications until appealed to by members of the Oxford City Club whilst travelling through Bern. In an exciting contest on the Hongkong Football Club ground by 22-20 after the score was 20-20 on the 22nd end. On the 23rd end the Kreuzlingen Club, J. Fraser, of the Kowloon C. C. met his clubmate, W. Mullenby, whom he easily defeated by 21 shots to five. On the 24th end, J. K. Sloan, of the Electric R. C. also gained an easy victory defeating R. C. Craig, of the Kowloon Dock R. C. by 21 shots to seven. On the Kowloon Bowling Green Club ground, B. W. Bradbury, of Craighower C. C. defeated F. X. M. Silva, of the Kowloon, by 21 shots to eight. At the Yacht Club, J. Tolan accounted for A. F. Paul by 21-13. In a Pairs Championship tie, A. E. Coates and M. J. Medina entered the third round by beating G. L. Buchanan and H. Bear by 21-13.

The effect of this attitude on the part of a Swiss Club official was that the three remaining matches of the tour against St. Gallen Zurich and Montreux Sports had to be cancelled and the members of the party devoted the time to additional rounds of sight-seeing, and apparently had, in spite of the football contretemps, a most enjoyable time.

THE F. A. ASK FOR PARTICULARS

On his arrival in England, Mr. Benson immediately communicated with Sir Frederick Wall, the secretary of the Football Association, placing all the facts before him.

Sir Frederick asked Mr. Benson to forward his claim for compensation against the Kreuzlingen Club and promised him that the F.A. would go fully into the matter.

Subsequently, Mr. J. R. Benson, president of the Oxford City Club, accompanied by Mr. H. W. Thompson, the old Oxford Blue, a member of the committee, travelled to the F.A. to interview the Secretary, Mr. Benson said that Sir Frederick Wall showed great interest in the case (Mr. Benson) had laid before him. The conference lasted about an hour and added Mr. Benson, "I think I may say that we were able to reveal to Sir Frederick some facts which he had changed his view."

"One thing we were able to establish definitely is that the Swiss F.A. were not responsible for cancelling the tour, and in fact were not aware of the persons concerned having done so at the time."

On his return to Oxford, Mr. Benson was met by a Press representative. "There is little I can say about my interview with Sir Frederick Wall," he declared. "On behalf of the Oxford City Club I put forward a detailed case of what happened, and I was corroborated by Mr. H. W. Thompson."

THE VALUE OF A LINGUIST.

"Mr. Thompson can speak German fluently, and when the trouble arose with the manager of the Kreuzlingen Club he was able, better than any of the rest of the party, to understand what was being said. From my point of view, it was very difficult for me to enter into an argument because of the language difficulty."

"Sir Frederick has received a statement from the Swiss Club, and he told me that he would have been glad if he had had our explanation before. He now desires me to make a full written statement of our position, which, when he has considered it, will be sent to the Kreuzlingen Club for their observation. These observations will then, I suppose, be sent back to Sir Frederick and will then be submitted to me."

"This, of course, will take some time and I cannot say when the matter will be straightened out."

"Several hundreds of pounds are involved and I intend to claim for the whole of the guarantee originally made by the Kreuzlingen Club. It was not until we met Mr. Norman Smith, the English representative of the Swiss Club, at Victoria on our departure that we had any idea we should be called upon to play the first match by floodlight."

"The Swiss F.A. deny the statement of the manager of the Kreuzlingen Club that they cancelled the tour. In fact,

OTHER MATCHES

One of the best matches to date in the present season lawn bowls open singles championship was that played yesterday evening on the Civil Service C. C. green between U. M. Omar and R. F. Luz in the first round.

Both players produced bowls of a good standard and although Omar had a commanding lead of 18 shots to 13 on the 17th end, a four by Luz made it anybody's match. On the 18th end Luz scored a single to level the scores at 18 all but Omar registered a single and a two to win by 22-18.

D. Roodman of the Chai Kengwong C. C. beat W. McLeod in an exciting contest on the Hongkong Football Club green by 22-20 after the score was 20-20 on the 22nd end.

On the Club de Recreo green, J. Fraser, of the Kowloon C. C. met his clubmate, W. Mullenby, whom he easily defeated by 21 shots to five. On the 24th end, J. K. Sloan, of the Electric R. C. also gained an easy victory defeating R. C. Craig, of the Kowloon Dock R. C. by 21 shots to seven. On the Kowloon Bowling Green Club ground, B. W. Bradbury, of Craighower C. C. defeated F. X. M. Silva, of the Kowloon, by 21 shots to eight. At the Yacht Club, J. Tolan accounted for A. F. Paul by 21-13. In a Pairs Championship tie, A. E. Coates and M. J. Medina entered the third round by beating G. L. Buchanan and H. Bear by 21-13.

CONTRACT BRIDGE Presentation Of Prizes

The presentation of prizes to the winners of the recent contract bridge tournaments was held at the Sports Club last evening, the prizes being given away by the Hon. Mr. R. E. Lindsell.

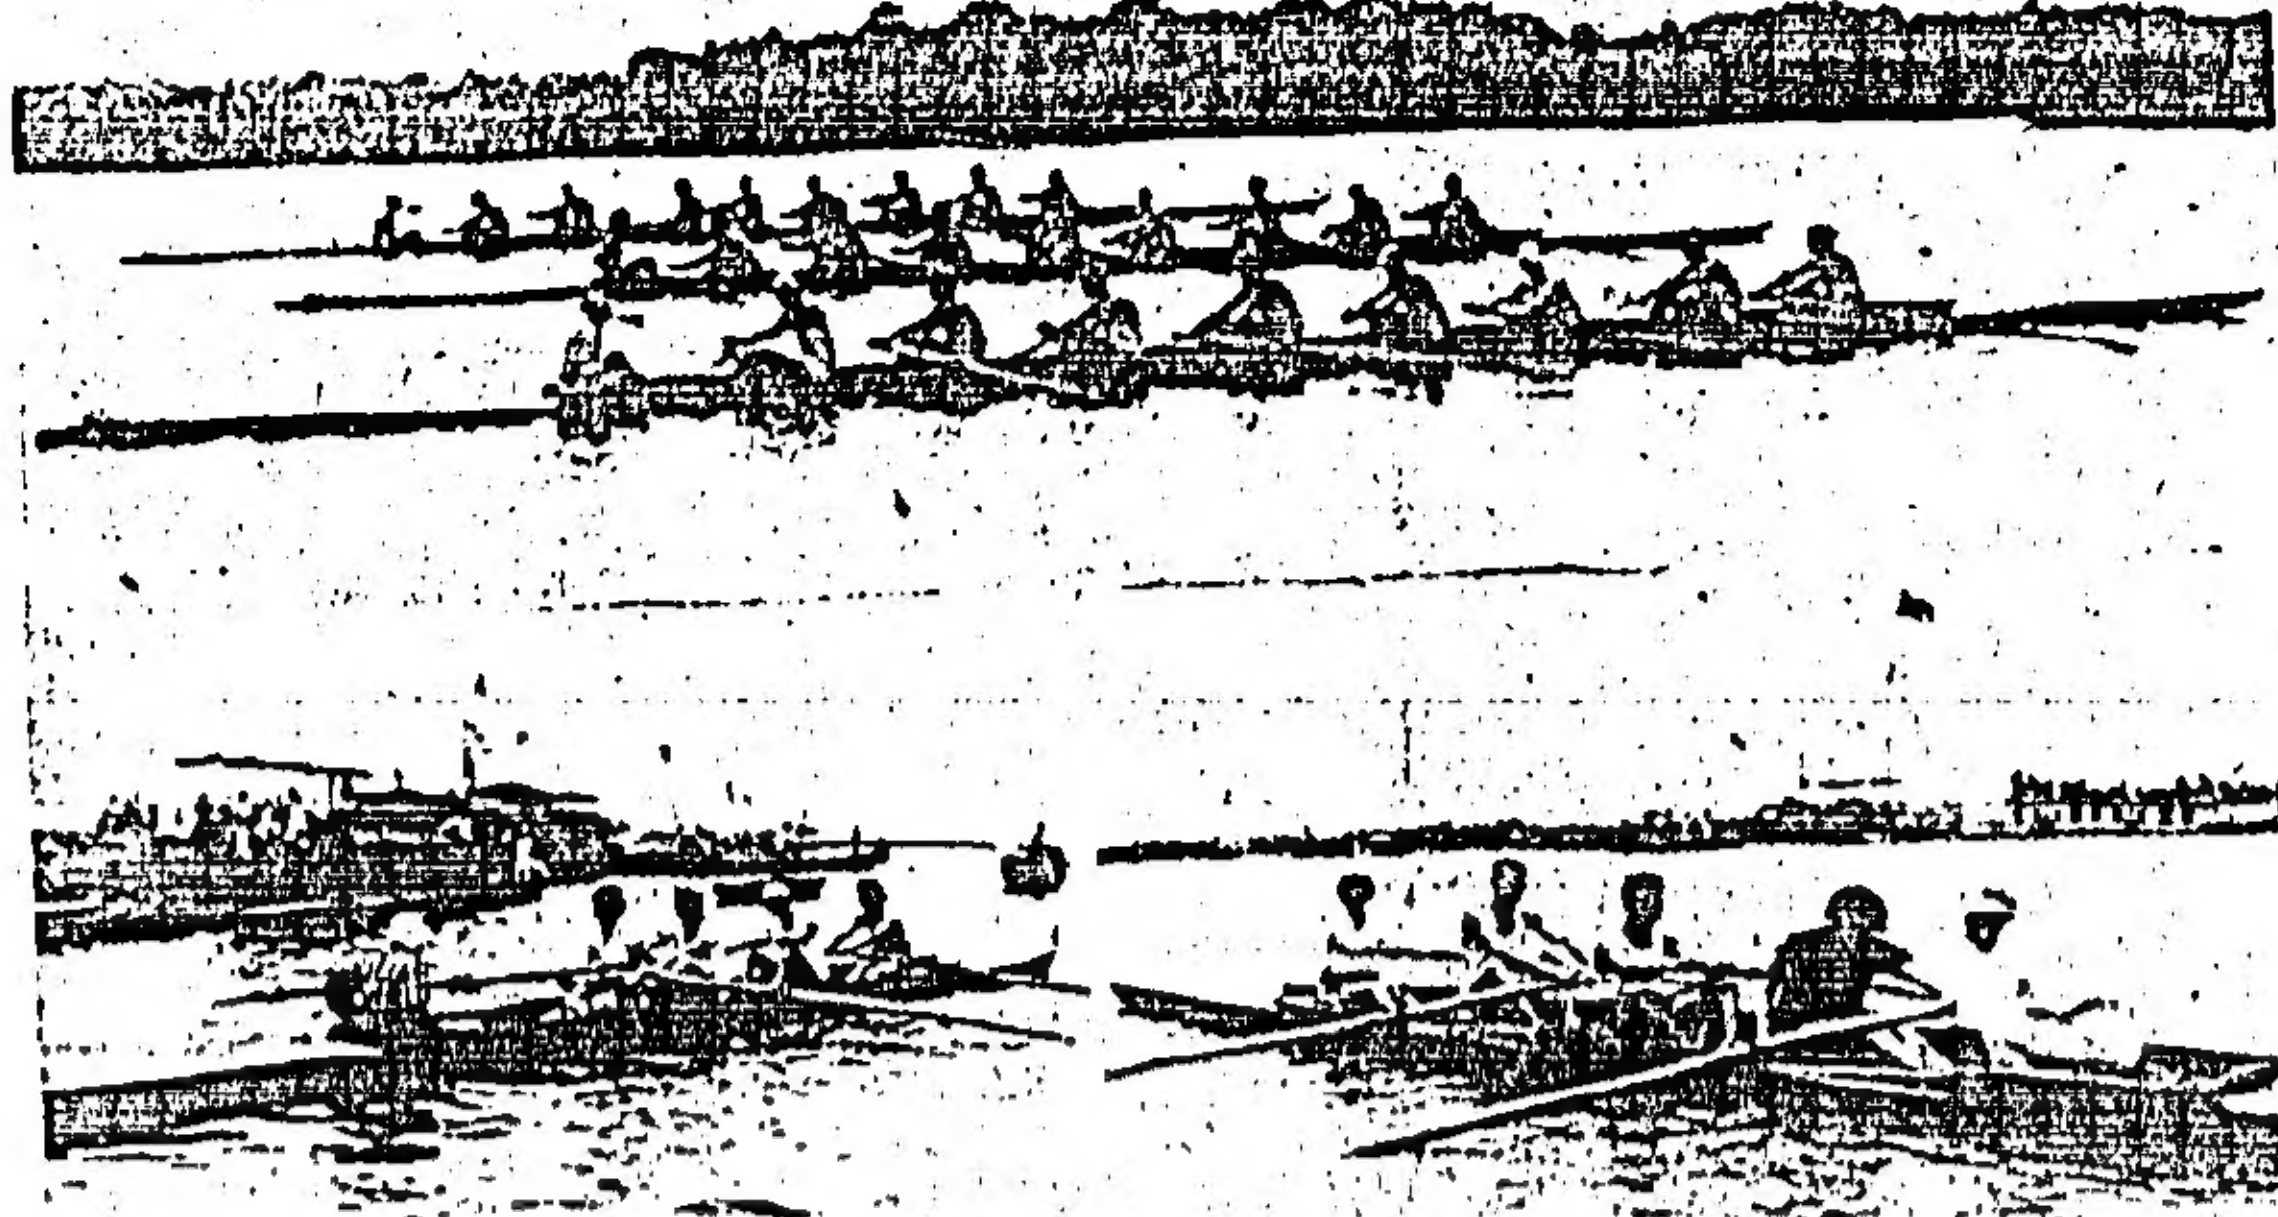

Mr. Lindsell said he thought they could congratulate themselves on the successful carrying through of the tournaments which had been run by an unofficial committee of which he had had the privilege of being chairman. He congratulated the winners and in particular Mr. Politi who had won two successive tournaments. He was not only a good player but had the happy knack of choosing good partners. He also expressed thanks to Mr. Politi for the great trouble he had taken throughout the tournaments. To the losers Mr. Lindsell wished better luck next time and thanked the Sports Club for their hospitality and for the use of the room.

The prize list was as follows: Open Championship: 1, Messrs. D. B. Judah and M. E. Politi; 2, Messrs. R. C. Danenberg and L. A. Ozorio.

Consolation Tournament: 1, Messrs. J. Abesser and Cheung U-pui; 2, Messrs. M. H. and H. Lo.

They suggested we should continue our tour and try and get as many matches as possible."

LINED UP FOR THRILLING EIGHTS RACE

The International Eights was won at Henli, Shanghai, by Norway by half a length from England, after one of the most thrilling struggles ever seen on the course. Above are shown the three crews, England, Norway and America lined up for the starting gun to send them off on the strenuous battle for supremacy in the Rowing Club's senior event. Below are shown two of the crews which competed in the Mixed Fours.

off Grimmett for 53 runs, without further addition to the score. Geary played a dour innings at first but then indulged in some hard hitting, reaching the boundary on ten occasions, cutting and driving being his strongest scoring strokes. 290-8-53.

VERITY'S "DUCK"

Farnes joined Verity but the latter was bowled for a "duck" without any alteration to the score. 266-9-0.

Mitchell, last man in, scored one run as did Farnes when the Essex amateur had his off-stump disturbed by Grimmett, who thus brought the innings to a close for 268 runs. England had taken 395 minutes in which to score their runs and are 100 runs in arrears.

Grimmett and O'Reilly, the slow bowlers, were the most successful of the trundlers and between them took nine of the wickets, Wall taking the other.

AUSTRALIA'S RETURN.

Australia went in for their second innings before the ten adjournment and quickly lost two wickets. Woodfull hooked Farnes to leg for two and in attempting a repetition of the stroke he lost his wicket, the ball taking his leg-stump. 2-1-2.

Brown relieved the Australian captain and after the score had been taken to 31 Ponsford played too late to an in-swinging from Hammond and was bowled for five. 31-2-5.

Bradman became associated with Brown for the third wicket and the two were still together when play was stopped for tea. The Australians had made 61 runs, Brown having scored 26 and Bradman 21.

BRADMAN FALLS.

After tea Bradman fell, taken by Ames, standing well back, his Farnes. Bradman just nicked the ball. He had scored 25. 69-3-25.

McCabe joined Brown and scored rapidly. Brown was batting with Woodfull's style. He was like a rock. In the last 50 minutes he scored only three.

At the close of play Brown's score was 37 and McCabe's 51. The total was 159 for three wickets.

McCabe played a joyful innings throughout. He had hit a six and thirteen fours, and had been 85 minutes at the wicket.

In spite of all predictions that his government of force would not last more than 24 hours, Colonel Batista has succeeded in keeping power in his hands for many months, owing to his diplomatic ability to postpone a final showdown, but sooner or later he will have to decide one way or the other. Will he definitely side with the radicals and incur the displeasure of the United States, or will he turn against his old comrades with whom he celebrated his first victories by drinking barrels of beer in the street of Havana?

Will Cuba go red or remain blue? The answer is in the hands of Colonel Batista.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE YESTERDAY'S MARKET UNSETTLED

According to Messrs. Swan Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was unsettled yesterday. Business done 750,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal reports:—The market has been unsettled, due to the situation in the steel industry together with the weakness of automobile shares due to Auburn omitting its usual 50 cents quarterly dividend, which was due on July 1st. Another unsettling factor was the reducing of prices by several other auto companies, which Wall Street interpreted as indicating that cars were not reaching expectations, thus causing profit-taking. The list rallied slightly towards the close. Gold and silver mines were mostly higher. Copper was steady to firm due to most producers and smelters having notified the Copper Code Authority that both domestic and electrolytic copper was up 1/2 cent to 9 cents. Curb was irregular. Wheat prices were irregular due to reports of rains in the West and in Canada.

Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz's New York office reports:—Stocks: In moderate supply, but held firmly in a dull market. Wheat: Rains are insufficient and are too late to benefit the small grains. Cotton: Reactionary. The weather in the Eastern Belt has improved. An unofficial advice says that there are prospects of rains in Texas. July liquidation and scattered Southern selling were absorbed by fair trade and foreign demand on the scale down. There was a better export demand for spot cotton and the basis is firm. Rubber: Irregular, with prices lower, principally on small outside selling. The primary markets are firm and are above our parity. Silver: Dull and uninteresting, awaiting definite news from Washington.

SCIENTIST TELLS OF AMAZING NEW RECIPE

Extraordinary laboratory tests made with a new face powder formula have definitely proved that any woman can now obtain a beautiful, youthful complexion and entirely banish shiny nose, blotches and the worst complexion defects.

The ingredient which makes this remarkable difference is called mouse of cream. It makes the powder stay on all day long even in windy or rainy weather, and in spite of perspiration while dancing or playing games.

The entire world's rights to this amazing new formula have been acquired by Tokalon Mouse of Cream. It is now scientifically blended in exactly the right proportions by a patented process with the finest air floated powder in Poudre Tokalon. Try a box of Tokalon Mouse of Cream. The only Mouse of Cream face powder to-day. The immediate and tremendous improvement in your appearance will be the admiration and envy of your friends.

But tears pricked at her eyelids. She swallowed hard. Why, she was being just a baby! She'd had to eat her dinner alone, before this. What was the matter with her?

The chop and the baked potato and the spinach all tasted like dust and ashes to her. She picked up a magazine and tried to read but the type all swam together. The stories were trite and uninteresting. What was she doing, in this strange little apartment, high up above the uncaring city, alone? She needed laughter and good talk and the kind faces of friends.

She piled the dishes in the sink, resolving to wash them later. Slipping quietly past the bedroom in which David slept, she washed and powdered and donned her black frock. If she had to be alone, at least she could make herself fresh and presentable. Nothing would happen... nothing ever happened to her any more. Her life was at a standstill.

ASLEEP ON SENTRY-GO

LINCOLNS PRIVATE CHARGED

PLEA OF ILLNESS

Private Norman Smith, of the Lincolnshire Regiment, appeared before a District Court Martial at Shamshulpo this morning charged with being found asleep while on duty as a sentry of the New Magazine Guard on June 1. He pleaded not guilty.

The Court comprised Major Impey (Lincoln), Capt. A. E. Bates (Punjab), and Lieut. Robinson (East Lancs). Lieut. F. W. Young (Lincoln) prosecuted and Lieut. Bransbury (Lincoln) defended.

Accused was found guilty, and sentence will be promulgated in due course.

Cpl. P. W. Fair, M.C.O. in charge of the New Magazine Guard, said he posted accused at No. 4 Post on May 31, at 10 p.m., after satisfying himself that accused was acquainted with the orders relating to his duties. Shortly before midnight he was visited by the Garrison Field Officer and accompanied him on visits to the posts. Accused was found sitting down on a form at his post, fast asleep, with his rifle between his legs.

"I AM NOT ASLEEP"

The Field Officer roused accused who mumbled something like "I am not asleep." He was relieved and placed under close arrest.

Capt. N. R. G. Tucker, South Wales Borderers, who was performing duties as Garrison Field Officer on the night of May 31-June 1, gave corroborative evidence.

"PAINS IN STOMACH"

Accused, in evidence, said he was detailed to No. 4 Post at 10 p.m. and at approximately 11.45 p.m.,

SEIZURE OF ESTATES ALLEGED

London, June 11. The Foreign Secretary, in reply to a Commons question, said a petition had been lodged by Prince Henry of Pleas with the Secretary of the League of Nations relating to the alleged action of the Polish authorities in taking possession of his main enterprise and estates in Upper Silesia.

Sir John Simon added that, in accordance with the usual procedure in urgent matters, the petition would be placed on the League Council agenda immediately. Pending its examination he was unable to make any statement. —British Wireless.

while walking round his bent, he felt sharp pains in his stomach. He halted for a few minutes to see if the pain passed off. As it did not he returned to his post and sat down on a form. The pain eased a little and the next thing he knew was that the Field Officer was asking him his name and number. He had complained of pains several times during the day.

Cross-examined, accused admitted he made no attempt to communicate with the Guard Commander when he felt ill on duty.

COLLEAGUE'S EVIDENCE.

Pte. W. Richardson gave evidence to the effect that accused complained early in the evening of pains in the stomach and a headache. Witness advised accused to report sick but the latter replied that it would be too much trouble to bring a relief from Shamshulpo. Cpl. Petchey, Guard Commander of the Hankow lines at Shamshulpo, also gave evidence.

The "C" Company Sergt. Major said accused was a member of his Company. He had always found him to be smart, keen and intelligent and very willing to do anything required. He joined the Battalion in February last.

BOSPHORUS CONTROL

FEARS OF DISPUTE REMOVED

TURKEY TAKING NO ACTION

London, June 11. The recent suggestion that the status of the International Commission in the Dardanelles was being challenged by the Turkish Government appears to have been mistaken.

The Turkish Government have no intention at the present time of refusing to recognise the validity of the clause governing the control of the Straits.

Replying in the House of Commons to questions regarding possible modification of certain provisions of the Lausanne peace settlement, dealing with the demilitarised zones adjoining the Dardanelles and Bosphorus, Sir John Simon said the matter was tentatively raised over a year ago by the Turkish delegate before the General Commission of the Disarmament Conference at Geneva.

It had not formed the subject of specific representations to His Majesty's Government.

The question having, however, more than once been alluded to by Turkish Ministers in conversation, he took a recent opportunity of mentioning it to the Turkish Foreign Minister at Geneva.

His Excellency then assured him that, in the present circumstances, the Turkish Government did not propose to pursue the matter. —British Wireless.

HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE

San Salvador, June 11.
Considerable loss of life is feared as the result of a terrific rainstorm in San Salvador.

A raging torrent swept through the capital carrying away the debris of a hundred shacks and houses.
The lower part of the town is completely under water.
Electric light and power lines were destroyed and traffic suspended.
Communications with the interior are interrupted.—Renter.
